Supreme Court Takes Qu

Under Advisement
MAY DECIDE TOMORROW
Walton League Alleges Unfit ness—Nagler Claims He Isn't Official

The high court took under advisement the petition of Frida, taken under advisement the petition of the Isaac Walton league and the action in quo warranto to oust L. B. Nagler from the office of director of conservation. The decision of the court may be made Saturday or may be held until the opening of the December call.

The high court took the petition under advisement after arguments for the defendant proceedings by J. V. Quarles, attorney in the Frank W. Quarles league, and H. H. Thomas, attorney for Nagler. Issuance of the court writ sought by the league would compel Nagler to show by what right he holds office.

Mr. Quarles cited the legislature's enactment creating the new six man non-salaried conservation commission and the chairman's selection of Mr. Nagler and the commission's announcement of the selection in which it stated that Nagler was not an experienced forester or fish man.

CHARGES INEXPERIENCE

He then contended that Nagler has had no experience and has no special skill in conservation, as the law requires, and that his executive ability remains to be proved.

His statement was interrupted by the justices on several occasions for questions regarding the nature of the proposed suit and what it would mean in the way of witnesses and issues. He said that no witness would be necessary because all the records on Nagler's employment by the state are in the capitol building. He felt, further, that these records would show him to have been employed for two years in other departments where he could have gained no experience in conserva-

The court suggested that action probably might have been brought against the commission for appointing Mr. Nagler improperly, instead of against him for holding the office, but the attorney declared that there was no legal action available by which the court could be asked and that quo warranto was the best method of testing his qualifications.

Mr. Nagler's attorney took up the suggestion by the court, that any action should be brought against the commission. He expressed belief that exemption of the director from civil service was an intimation that he was an employee only, and declared that the mandatory term "employment" showed Nagler is not a public official, as a public official is appointed.

— TOPIC NO. 04TH —

Nagler and he was not required to furnish bond and, while this is not a true test of a public office, under previous decisions it has been held as an indication of a public trust or office." Mr. Thurman said.

Mr. Ingham contended that contrary to the assertions of the Isaacs Walton attorney, Mr. Nagler was not empowered to handle large sums of money or to "hire and fire" around 400 men, all of his actions being subjected to the approval of the commission.

"Although he is to act for the commission in the interim between its ject to the approval or disapproval of the commission." Mr. Thomas said: "The commission can make his office that of an exalted chief clerk," he continued. "So the talk of the disciples of Sir Isaac about his being in a position where he can do irreparable damage is impossible. Disagreeing with Mr. Quarles, Mr. Thomas maintained that witnesses and other court proceedings would be necessary if quo warranto proceedings were brought against the conservation director.

The court gave no indication as to he made, going immediately into other cases on the regular November call.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GROWN HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get for only 75 cents this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." This darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair; taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance. adv.

STATE WATER LEVELS KNOWN TO DRILLERS

Scientific Knowledge Is Replacing "Rule of Thumb" and Divining Rod

Green Bay—(AP)—Science is replacing the "rule of thumb" and the old divining rod in the digging of wells. Prof. F. T. Thwaites, University of Wisconsin geologist, told Wisconsin well drillers in convention here today.

He said that after 15 years of research the state geological survey's knowledge of water bearing formations has been brought to the point where needless expense for the well driller and tapping of water supplies that are not the best available may be avoided many times.

In those years, Mr. Thwaites explained, the survey has been collecting samples of cuttings and logs from Wisconsin and northern Illinois wells, and from the study of these has developed a store of information upon the depth and thickness of water bearing strata and the quality of water in each stratum which is constantly drawn upon by well drillers.

Some of the problems of water supply which the geologist can aid the well driller in solving, Mr. Thwaites pointed out as follows:

DATA IS COMPILED
"From some regions we have enough well samples so that we can tell the precise depth at which hard or soft water will be found. As more wells are drilled in Wisconsin and more samples are submitted we can make an additional Wisconsin data on quality of water at different levels."

"We have nearly enough records now to make a map for the whole state which will show the water supply possibilities in each section. Maps have been made for certain areas, as the Fox River valley."

"We are studying temperatures of water from flowing wells because temperature gives a certain index to depth of the formation."

"Down to about 50 feet, the earth's temperature varies according to the season of the year. The coldest water comes from the 50 to 60 foot level at which the temperature is constant at about the mean average temperature of the locality. Below this depth temperature increases with depth. At 2,000 feet, as deep as we have been able to take readings, it stands at about 76 degrees the year around."

"By determining the temperature of water from an old well we can find from what level the water comes—in information which is highly important to the driller called upon to make repairs upon such a well when nothing was recorded as to formations penetrated."

Excessive Heat Is Evil In Winter Ventilation

Madison—Rooms heated to 68 degrees are comfortable to people who are properly clothed. Many dwellings are overheated during the winter time, causing dangers to health and too great an expense for heating. Most people do not dress warm enough in their own home.

These are some of the suggestions on ventilation contained in a bulletin prepared by the health committee of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin issued today. The bulletin warns people to use careful means for introducing air from the outside into their houses.

"Excessive heat is the chief evil in winter ventilation," says the bulletin. "Numerous experiments have proved conclusively that excessive heat is the chief cause of discomfort in badly ventilated rooms and that the chief cause of nasal troubles in winter is the sudden change from cold to heat or heat to cold, which reduces the resistance of the nasal mucous membrane, coupled with the increased exposure to contact with infection brought about by indoor crowding. The indoor temperature should not be above 68 degrees Fahrenheit, and we should all probably be healthier in winter if we dressed indoors somewhat more warmly than we do and accustomed ourselves to a lower temperature than this. This, however, outside of our own homes, required united community action."

HUMIDITY AN EVIL
"Excessive humidity is likewise an evil. The evil effects of excessive temperature are greatly increased by excessive humidity. In a crowded room the air immediately surrounding each individual is apt to become excessively humid because moisture is being constantly given off from the skin and in the breath and the circulation of the air about the body is impeded. Active circulation of the air in such a place is much more important than active change of air in the room as a whole. It is especially important that the air circulate about the head. Avoid a condition which produces cold feet and hot heads."

"Fresh air may be introduced into rooms heated by steam or hot water by raising slightly the lower window sashes beneath which radiators are located. The entering stream of cold air is mixed at once with the warm air rising from the radiator and diffuses through the room without causing a draft. Air leakage past doors and windows may provide adequate circulation; if not, the upper window sashes should be lowered an inch or so. In rooms occupied by many people it may be necessary to lower the window sashes a considerable distance although drafts may result. These may be prevented by the use of the windows which deflect the incoming cold air upward where it is heated."

HOMES OVERHEATED
"Many dwellings are overheated. This is not only expensive, but lowers the vitality and resistance of the individual to colds and other infections of the air passages. Experience has shown that rooms heated to 68 degrees are comfortable to individuals who are properly clothed, provided there are no drafts and the air is not too dry. If more heat seems necessary, it shows that the moisture content of the air is too low. In such cases moisture may be provided by the use of small pans of water placed under or on the radiators, or by keeping in the room potted plants which liberate relatively large quantities of moisture. A person's sense of discomfort guide to heating and ventilation, provided that he is not too much accustomed to the ill effects of overheating and poor ventilation. In general, however, a feeling of drowsiness and depression with a flushing of the face indicates that the air is too warm and too moist, while a sense of dryness on the lips and face indicates that the air is too dry."

City Parking Ordinance Is Bad News For One Man

There is one man living in Appleton who will not park his automobile in a garage.

Many weeks ago, when parking was forbidden on that part of S. Oneida-st in front of the city hall, this man parked his car just south of the forbidden zone. There it stayed all one week. The owner used it over the weekend and then left it parked for five days more in the same place. Rain or shine made no difference. The owner was out of the city during the week and he saw no reason why he should park his car in a garage when the street was handy.

When police tagged the car, warning the owner he must use a little discretion in the matter of parking for an indefinite period, he smiled. The next week the car was parked on Kimball-st just south of Lawrence-ave. After it had been parked there a week, property owners in the neighborhood objected. Again the police warning.

Next it was parked on Lawrence-ave, between Kimball-st and the Y. M. C. A. Neighbors once more objected. Again the police warning to "move along."

"Then it was the city hall's turn once more. That was the last straw. Enphatic warning was given the owner of the car that if any more complaints on parking of the car were received, the owner could "tell it to the judge."

Now the car's owner has friends in the Y. M. C. A. who move the automobile to a new parking place every five hours.

He simply will not hire a garage.

122 PERSONS ENROLL IN NIGHT CLASSES

Neenah—A total of 122 persons are attending evening school provided by the vocational school, according to the report of Carl Christensen, superintendent, presented Thursday evening at the monthly meeting of vocational school board. The enrollment by classes: Nurses, 9; sewing, 15; woodwork, 19; drafting, seven; bookkeeping, 15; shorthand, 11; typewriting, 20; English, 10 and electricity, 15.

COUNTY BOARD MIGHT STOP SUNDAY DANCES

Neenah—Among the projects likely to come before the annual meeting of Winnebago-co board of supervisors when that body convenes next Tuesday, will be a resolution directing authorities to stop all dances in Winnebago-co on Sundays. Several supervisors have been aroused by what they claim is the "wide open" operation of dance halls within the county on Sunday evenings, a feature which is prohibited by ordinance in the city and which the supervisors feel should also be wiped out in the entire county.

Two prominent road projects are mentioned for the coming year. One is the Waupun road and the other is the paving of the lake shore road between Oshkosh and Neenah. The lake shore road is favored by many on the theory that it will relieve the heavy traffic congestion on highway 41.

Mechanical Voice Enables One Of World's Richest Men To Talk, Despite Operation

New York—Science has rescued one of the world's richest men from silence.

Out of the experimental laboratories where men toll for sheer joy of discovery rather than for gold, has come a new voice for United States Senator T. Coleman Du Pont, of the famous Delaware "Crescent-Clan."

Use of this mechanical voice has been made necessary and possible by an intricate and highly difficult operation performed by Dr. John E. Muehleny, New York throat specialist. It is a scientific duplication of Nature's speech-creating organs.

Once again, it is said, the Senator's voice will be heard in the Washington chambers. Stricken with a serious throat disease, it became necessary to remove his vocal cords and larynx, as well as a portion of the windpipe. This would have doomed him to silence throughout life had not science thwarted the doom.

An idea of the seriousness of the Senator's affliction may be gained from the statement that the operation left an orifice in his throat as his only means of breathing. And it is through this that the voice-recreating device functions.

LIKE DAVE'S PIPE
It resembles nothing in size and contour as much as the "underlung" smoking pipe so popular with Vice-president Dawes—as shown in the accompanying sketch.

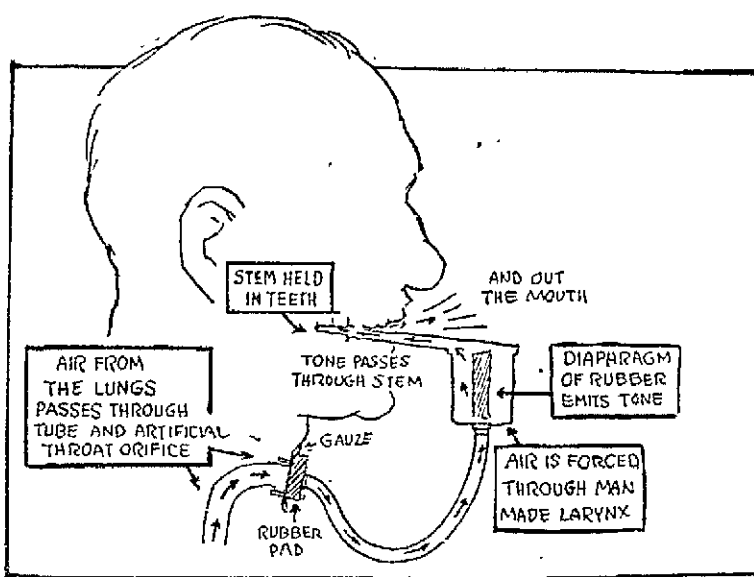

In its inverted bowl the inventors have inserted a vibrating rubber diaphragm which does the work of the human vocal cords. From the top of the bowl extends a stem which is held in the mouth, as far back as possible between the teeth. Breath reaches the rubber diaphragm by means of a tube leading into the bottom of the bowl from the throat opening. This orifice is covered with a soft rubber pad whose opening for the tube is covered by gauze to keep dust from entering the lungs.

Just as in ordinary breathing, air is forced through this tube into the bowl and, thence, into the mouth. Sound and tone, thus become automatic and it remains merely for the tongue, lips and palate to form words and emit them. Naturally the usual inflections of voice become difficult and the speaking is done in an almost continuous monotone.

The device, which is quite small and light, can be carried about in a coat pocket. It needs to be worn only in conversation. The speaker needs merely to hook up one end of the tube with the throat entrance and place the stem well back in his mouth and presto, speech is restored.

OTHERS USE IT
Thus through the genius of Drs. Harvey Fletcher and Clarence Lane at the Western Electric Laboratories, guided by practical suggestions for improvement from others similarly spared to dumbness, the power of speech has been preserved for one powerful of wealth.

In amassing the great Du Pont fortune, the senator figures, perhaps, as the outstanding business genius. He is the sole member of the clan who literally is "self-made." He won wealth in the Pennsylvania and Kentucky mines, starting with a comparatively small amount of money. He was going a "long gait" when called in to take the presidency of the family corporation, at the time a $20,000,000 concern. Within 15 years, under his guidance, it grew to $200,000,000. He is a veritable business giant.

At 120 Broadway is his "downtown monument"—a huge office building—and he operates a chain of distinctive hotels. The extent of his personal fortune is not definitely known, but his business buildings and realty holdings alone have a value of many millions.

ICELAND AWAKENS, PLANS 1ST RAILROAD

Will Commemorate 1,000 Years of Existence of Oldest Parliament

Reykjavik, Iceland—(P)—The little northern kingdom of Iceland has taken on a new lease of life, after being in the doldrums for years after the war, and it has begun to formulate plans for building its first railroad and to celebrating in 1930 the millenary of the Althing, claimed to be the world's oldest democratic parliament.

Tentative plans include the building of a national theater in Reykjavik, the capital, and the erection of a church on the Thingvallur as memorials to the foresightedness of the intrepid pioneers of a thousand years ago.

There is a difference of opinion as to certain religious aspects of the event, but history records that it was in 930 that the principal peasants and traders of the country assembled to determine upon a new faith as against the Pagan Votan cult. The outcome was that the Althing, meaning a national or supreme "thing," or council, resulted from this. Seventy years afterward the Icelanders discovered the main-

WORLD MOVES TOWARD PEACE

On the eve of Armistice day Prime Minister Baldwin of Great Britain in a speech at Guild hall, declares that he is an optimist. While cherishing no fond illusions as to the difficulties confronting his country, both at home and abroad, he still insisted that there has been "a profound change in Europe in the last five years," and the change all for the better.

How completely his statement that Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy are now working in good faith to advance the cause of peace and to forward "the convalescence of our common civilization," may be accepted we would not undertake to say. Too much depends on the motives and real purposes of European statesmen whose frankness and sincerity cannot always be relied upon.

If Mr. Baldwin's assumption was correct then Europe's peace would be guaranteed, for the four powers he has named can suppress war, even as to Russia, France and Germany are rapidly burying the hatchet; their treaty of friendship to our mind virtually removes all direct consideration of war as between themselves. But France's support of Poland, coupled with Germany's refusal to accept Eastern boundary awards, puts a different color in the relationship. Italy's Adriatic and Mediterranean ambitions are a strain on France, while Great Britain has its special interests to protect in the Balkans and Near east.

Despite these sinister potentialities, we should say that Mr. Baldwin's optimism is consistent and well founded. The forces that demand peace in Europe are almost irresistible. They are too great as to be temporarily insurmountable, and by the time Europe is physically and financially able to prosecute another war the probability is that many of the injustices of the Versailles treaty will have been corrected and most of the rivalries will have been composed. Statesmen with the courage of Stresemann and the broad humanity of Briand, to quote Mr. Baldwin, will be found in the Balkans, in central and eastern Europe, who will follow their example and hold their countries to ways of peace. They must be found or Europe doomed to ruin.

The nine years since the Armistice have not gone in vain. A great deal has been done for the cause of international peace and to prevent a recurrence of another world war. When we consider the desperate character of that conflict, all the havoc in life and property it wrought, the hatreds, burdens and wrongs it entailed, the progress that has been made toward reconciliation, understanding and justice is tremendous. The work of the League of Nations, the world court edifice, the Locarno treaties, are extraordinary achievements, not one of which was possible before 1914. True, many troublesome questions remain, many unsatisfactory relationships exist, many rivalries and some intrigue persist, but they are a part of the aftermath of the war, and certainly a minor part. The major powers are widening their common ground today. So long as they do this they will be a check upon the tensions and differences of the smaller states.

This return of Armistice day finds the world nowing slowly but surely in the right direction, justifying Mr. Baldwin's optimism and the hopes of all true peace servitors.

LIFE NEVER SO INTERESTING

According to Hendrick Van Loon, historian, artist and essayist, life has never before been so interesting. Of all the periods that have marked the movement of civilization, this is the best in which to be alive," he says; "the world has never before been in such a muddle, has never before been such a horrible mess. It has never been so full of confusion and has never been so full of hope."

Whatever may be the faults of the times, being uninteresting is certainly not one of them, and we agree with Mr. Van Loon, that so far as we can discover no previous age has offered such a diversity of muddles and messes and dislocated gears to lend spice to existence.

Of course, it is pleasant to have things go smoothly now and then, but as a steady diet it could become insufferably monotonous.

BETTER JURIES

Chief Justice Taft at the National conference on the Reduction of Crime, made a plea for better juries. "A further examination of the methods by which jurors are selected so that jurors of weak intelligence, of little experience and subject to emotions easily aroused," is urged by Mr. Taft as a method of bettering the legal machinery for the prosecution of crime. He stressed that the method of jury selection should not make it possible for counsel for defendants to exclude worthy citizens in favor of less responsible persons, adding: "Exemptions from jury service ought to be cut down and society ought to be able to secure a jury that approaches the issues with a sense of its obligation to enforce the law. The country has been aroused to the necessity of bettering our legal machinery for the prosecution of crime. Public opinion as manifested in the public press has created a demand for investigation."

These words were interpreted to be Mr. Taft's reaction to the mistrial in the Fall-Sinclair case. Mr. Taft also says that we need legislation to reduce as much as possible the opportunities of counsel for convicted men to delay a review and final disposition of the cases, that we need legislation that shall render impossible new trials except for real injustice in a trial, and that we need legislation to enlarge the power of the judges to guide the trial and to help the jury in understanding the evidence and in reaching its conclusion upon the evidence, meaning that the law should not prevent the charge of the court from being enlightening and clarifying.

Legislation along the lines that Mr. Taft has suggested should be secured as speedily as possible. The delays attendant upon even the most urgently needed legislation, however, precludes any hope of immediate relief.

OTHER TIMES, OTHER LAWS

As things go, the automobile is fairly young, yet within the space of its short life several laws touching it have been completely reversed, at least under some conditions. The speed law, for instance. Originally the law governing speed specified such a slow pace that few cars, and only those in the best of condition could throttle down sufficiently and still run smoothly, with the consequence that, with the best of intentions, drivers found it impossible to keep within the law and finally entirely disregarded it. The regulations as to horns kept the streets in more or less a constant din.

Now the speed limit is constantly being advanced and the horns silenced. On many highways the instructions are to speed up or get off, and an extra toot or so on the horn will land one in jail.

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT CANCER

6.—Heed the Warning Signals

Cancer may be your fate or mine, regardless of family history, age, previous condition of health or personal hygiene. Most cases of cancer occur after middle age, but many cases in the third and fourth decades, a few in early childhood, and sometimes in youth.

Any type of cancer, skin cancer (epithelioma), organ cancer (carcinoma) or flesh cancer (sarcoma) is painless in the early stage, and in this stage it is strictly a local disease and does not affect the blood or the general system or the general health. In most cases it is a development upon some trouble that has been present a considerable time, and an unsuspected development, so that it is hard for the victim to realize frankly that there is anything wrong. Although the disease is present, and may be positively diagnosed by microscopic examination, the patient at this stage looks and feels as well as ever and the most careful examination elicits no other sign of disease. A specific biological test was introduced by Abercalden 15 years ago, but this was found unreliable, and today there is no more positive test for cancer in any stage than the opinion of the physician corroborated by microscopical examination of a bit of the tissue.

Any tumor, lump, cake or swelling in the breast, especially of a woman not nursing a child, demands an examination by the family physician. This is particularly advisable for women from 40 to 50 years of age.

Any newly noticed irritation about an old mole, wart, vein, birthmark or scar, should be brought to the attention of one's physician. These are rightly called precancerous lesions. No one can tell precisely when cancer begins in such a lesion. Any good doctor may safely excise such lesions painlessly and without disfigurement, and this is the best way to prevent cancer.

In women, especially mothers of several children, any irregularity of menstruation, unusual discharge between periods, reappearance of the flow after the menopause (change of life) or bleeding at unexpected moments, should warrant examination by the physician. Such symptoms do not spell cancer, but so often they are the only warning signals, so that a woman is duty to herself and to her family the woman is bound to have proper medical advice. It is a fatal mistake to attribute such symptoms to one's age or to a change of life, a mistake that has cost the life of many a misguided woman. Any white discharge tinged at times with blood, occurring between the menstrual periods, in a woman past 35 years of age, warrants suspicion of cancer of the womb. As a rule there is no pain in early cancer of the womb, or at most a vague sense of fullness or distress.

Cancer of the stomach must be considered when a man over 40 begins to have "indigestion," loss of appetite particularly for meat, perhaps slight colicky pains, loss of weight. Such a man certainly needs a medical examination, including analysis of his gastric juice. If he has any or all of the symptoms mentioned, he is not necessarily subject to cancer, but his physician must consider cancer among the possible causes.

None of these warning signals indicates that the person has cancer. They are not danger signals. They are only caution signals. Heed them and keep well.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bright Beaming Countenance

How can I make my sebaceous glands behave? My face is spotted over with tiny blackheads and pimples to high heaven shortly after washing. (Miss K. A.)

Answer.—In other words, you have a young skin. Sponge the skin twice daily with pledgets of absorbent cotton wet with a solution of resorcin in distilled water—10 grains to the ounce. Avoid all face creams and put your trust in good old soap and water.

What, No Breakfast?

Please tell me how I can overcome constipation. I eat no breakfast, a very light lunch and a moderate dinner in the evening. I work in an office, but walk about two miles each day and still have to take pills and medicine. (B. M.)

Answer.—You should eat breakfast, even though you may do without lunch. If you believe your trouble is a disease, you need medical advice. If you believe it is only a habit, tell me you have the constipation habit and I will mail you Rules for Recovery from the Constipation Habit. I have no cures or treatments to send you.

Who Said He Couldn't Come Back?

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

ENSLAVERED BY THE CLICHE

Literary habits sometimes fix themselves upon writers and, have as strong a grip on them as opium has on its slaves. They take a grip that the writer cannot shake loose. Many know the pangs of denying themselves tobacco after years of indulgence and some know how difficult it is to leave alcohol alone. A writer experiences the agony of going without opium. The average non-writer has no conception of the pain non-writers suffer before they can break themselves of the habit of using certain pet words or phrases, the repetition of which becomes a torture to the spirit and makes their author ridiculous.

It may be that there is some phrase in the English language that causes a young writer more trouble than that perfectly good word 'sudden,' but I doubt it. Next time you read a young writer who is doing his best or second book, notice how often he uses "sudden" or "suddenly." Unless he has gone through a long apprenticeship before publishing, the chances are that these two words will be his pet words.

There is something about "sudden" that seems to make it absolutely necessary to the beginner. It is a good word in its place. When something occurs suddenly there is no harm in using so, but the youthful writer's instinct often is to say, "Suddenly" turned about and went out of the room," when the context shows that the action was as deliberate as anything could be.

Why the "sudden" habit has such strong hold on young writers I do not pretend to say. I only know that it is so. No one who has never tried to break himself of such a habit can have the smallest idea of its power. It is one of the curiosities of literature.

For a very good illustration turn to Louis Bromfield, who in many ways is a very fine writer. The cliché is a vice with him that sometimes comes very near making him ridiculous. In "Early Autumn" he had a number of words and phrases that were repeated over and over and over again and everything was "sudden," or done "suddenly" But that was no good that this fact could spoil it. In "A Good Woman," a paragraph the clichés are painful.

First of all there is "suddenly" counted down in a single paragraph of nine lines. I doubt if it is a page in the book on which the word is not used. On some pages are so numerous that it is a wonder the printers did not run out of the type.

Then there are other phrases "Slate-colored house," for instance. The "good woman" of the story in an industrial town where the coal smoke turned everything to color. It was also right therefore her house was described as "slate-colored." It was right to put it after a division of the novel to refer to it occasionally. But Louis Bromfield has hit on this phrase he is not satisfied to use now and then. Something seems to force him never to refer to the "women's" house except as "the slate-colored house." When Philip comes home from work he goes to the "slate-colored house." When the away husband comes home from Australia he comes home to "the slate-colored house." In one place he gets sick of the "slate-colored house" that all the assets of a phrase are turned into liabilities.

Or there is another favorite of Naomi, a young missionary, her "flat voice." The phrase is a remarkably good one. The first time David uses it the reader feels that that apt description always gives after we have been told five or six times that Naomi has a "flat voice" and after nearly every else in the story who sings for about a "flat voice," the reader is already ready to choke some one.

Bromfield is like a dope fiend. By his dope consists of apt phrases. It may take him years to get the habit, all the more so because he probably is not conscious of himself. It would be an act of friendliness to point it out to him.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

NEW PROBLEMS IN HEALTH BROUGHT BY AVIATION

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene,
The Health Magazine

Physicians who have charge of the health of army and navy aviators have found numerous special problems associated with this occupation and they are beginning to develop a special hygiene as a sort of standard.

Pilots' efficiency depends not only on the physical condition of the aviator at the time of his first examination, but also on the maintenance of this condition throughout the aviator's flying life.

The eyes are the most important factor from the physical requirement point of view as is pointed out by Commander R. C. Davis of the medical corps of the United States navy. Sharpness of vision alone is not sufficient, but there must be perfect balance of the muscles that the aviator uses in the acquisition of binocular vision. All movements must be perfectly coordinated.

GUARDING THE VISION

Dust, oil, sand and glare will produce irritation of the eyelids and of the eye itself which will impair vision and which interferes as to landing. Therefore, goggles with adequate side screens and lenses of plain non-breakable glass should always be worn.

To accidents, commanders must have eyes and feet and there are mountains in a race part of under or word.

The eyes are examined regularly, and it is known that vision may be impaired following a severe cold or a prolonged use of the eyes in close optical problems.

as well. Aviators know the necessity of maintaining an equal air pressure on each side of the ear drum. Changes in altitude vary the pressure greatly.

In rapid descents the aviator swallows frequently in order to equalize air pressure on each side of the ear drum. Sometimes it is necessary to hold the nose and blow in order to expand the ear drum when congestion may be present.

Greatly unequal drum pressure will produce sudden severe pain and may cause a perforation of the ear drum. For this reason, examiners for the aviation corps are likely to disqualify pilots who have ear drums with scars or with severe inflammations.

PLUGGING THE EARS

It is also known that blocking of the eustachian tubes which pass from the throat to the ear may result in dizziness or lack of coordination, so that the aviator makes sure that both tubes are open before he accepts the flight.

The roar of the motor reduces the hearing ability, and it is frequently customary to place a plug of cotton in the external ear to protect the hearing sense when flying.

One of the conditions that the medical corps guards against is staleness. The strain of flying produces a progressive lowering of efficiency with a depression of mental and physical activity.

Various forms of staleness have been described as related to the muscles, the nerves, or the breathing apparatus, and also that related to disorders of digestion. Since staleness is a potent factor in accidents, the lieutenant recommends a complete rest or change of environment for from a few days to a month whenever signs of staleness ap-

All Arts Are Factors For World Peace

Commerce, science, art, education, and religion are common to every nation and are the significant factors through which world peace may be obtained, the Rev. Charles Beal of the Congregational church, Oshkosh, said at the general meeting of Appleton Womens club Thursday noon.

The smaller peculiarities of each nation are the things that must be given up in order to secure tolerance and understanding between nations of the world. An understanding and tolerance between nations is paramount to and a prerequisite of international peace, according to the speaker.

As the community gives way to the state, the state to the nation, so the nation must give way to the needs of humanity, Rev. Beal said.

Suspicious Would-be Buyer
Causes Boy to Be Held on Statutory Charge

Douglas Roussey, 20, Milwaukee was held at the police station here Friday morning awaiting an official from the sheriff's office of Milwaukee-co where he is wanted on a serious statutory charge. Roussey was arrested on suspicion Thursday afternoon and when police checked his story they found he was wanted in Milwaukee.

Roussey had arrived in Appleton in a dilapidated touring car, which he attempted to sell for $5. The prospective buyer was suspicious and went to the police station to check up on the license number. It was found that the license had been issued to a Polish woman. The buyer was then instructed to bring Roussey to the police station and the Milwaukee youth came without hesitation. He told police officers he left home last week after a quarrel with his parents. A call to his parents revealed that the boy left home because a warrant had been sworn out for his arrest. The sheriff at Milwaukee was informed.

STAGE And SCREEN

'CHINESE PARROT IMPRESSIVE AND THRILLING FILM

"The Chinese Parrot," the Paul Leni production of the Earl Derr Biggers story of the same name which was for months a weekly fiction feature in the "Saturday Evening Post" and which comes to Fischers Appleton Theatre Saturday will certainly make a deep impression on local motion picture patrons.

Here is a photograph which will live in the minds of those who see it for years to come. It is made without crowds or massive settings; without sensationalism or feats of derring-do; it keeps the audience on the edge of their seats throughout the entire showing of the masterly acting under this directorial genius.

The plot is simple, that of a man who goes out into the world to amass a fortune so that he may repay the girl who spurned his love in his own sensational way. But after he gains his wealth and the opportunity arises he is not capable of following through with his original plans. The actors are few but perfectly cast. Miss Nixon and Edmund Burns, carry the feature roles in the picture although Hobart Bosworth and K. Sorn, noted Chinese actor are also prominent. To them and to Leni, that great

WAS CAL WEARY WHEN HE CHOSE NOT TO RUN?

Deepening lines in President Coolidge's face as remarkably shown above in his newest picture, seem to indicate that when he said he "did not choose to run" in 1928, he was a tired man, speaking his feelings. The stern worried expression in the central picture of the group contrasts strikingly with that of 1920, when he was elected on of executive. The pictures tell their own story.

Teuton artist of the screen, goes the credit for a perfectly presented melodrama, full of fine acting and good directing.

The acting is not the vigorous hand and chest type but is the more delicate and more difficult type which depends on the moving of a hand or the turning of a head for its rare finesse.

This is the most difficult sort of picture to direct yet is, without doubt, the most interesting to watch.

HOUSE COMMITTEE SCANS U. S. EXPENSES

Meets Officials of Executive Branch to Determine Required Funds

Washington—(AP)—Full house cleaning of the government's fiscal affairs will be started soon by the house appropriations committee as a preparatory step toward appropriations by the forthcoming Congress of nearly $4,000,000,000 to pay Uncle Sam's running expenses during the fiscal year 1928-29.

The committee, in its present form, came into existence when the budget bureau was created early in the Harding administration, and in the succeeding half dozen years has become one of the most powerful committees in Congress.

Headed by Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, it summons before it each year practically all officials of the executive branch of the government for detailed consideration of their requests for funds to carry on the work of their departments and agencies.

"The work of the committee is not merely to sit down and allotting sums to government activities," Chairman Madden declares. "It involves the examination of the economy of administration, a study of affairs looking to the elimination of waste and the insistence on efficiency in operation."

"The highest and lowest administrative officer who comes before the committee must be able to give a straightforward and understandable account of his stewardship, and if he fails to do so the money is not appropriated until someone who can is put in charge."

"In its six years of work the committee always has effected reductions in estimates of the budget."

The Washington school saw a photo of the Schlitz display in the August number of Display Topics.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS GETS HOLMES LETTERS

Washington—(AP)—A packet of letters by Oliver Wendell Holmes, full of the genial, sympathetic spirit which characterized the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," has been added to the collection of American historical and literary papers in the manuscripts division of the Library of Congress.

The letters were written between 1869 and 1891 to Esther Bernon Carpenter of Wakefield, R. I., author of "South County Neighbors," and contained much kindly comment and advice on her efforts in verse and prose. They dwindle in frequency with the passage of time, and toward the end he tells of his failing vision.

They were preserved for many years by Miss Carpenter's relatives, and are considered an important addition to the library's collection of manuscripts which are valuable to the student of American literature.

SHOE FORCES PRISONERS TO WATCH THEIR STEPS

Berlin—(AP)—German jailbirds will have a hard time making a getaway once they begin to wear the specially devised "crocodile" shoe invented by the Commissariat in Criminal Cases of Magdeburg.

The shoe is of sheet steel, lined on the inside with felt, so that it occasions no discomfort to the wearer. The lock automatically adjusts itself to the ankles in such a manner that the prisoner can move from place to place only by walking slowly. Running or jumping is impossible.

It is claimed for the shoe that the hardness of the steel precludes the possibility of its being filed through. Even an expert locksmith, says the inventor, cannot open the lock without the special key.

The new invention is first to be tried out in connection with transports of criminals from one place to another, to prevent their escape en route.

KENTUCKY SEEKS FUND FOR NATIONAL PARK

Louisville, Ky.—(AP)—Mammoth Cave and a score of lesser known caverns in central Kentucky will be included in the Mammoth Cave national park which is to be presented to the government.

Congress already has approved acceptance of the park, which will be improved and maintained by the government. Its opening will mark the establishment of the fourth large national park east of the Mississippi river. There already is a national park in Madine, and recently the government accepted the Shenandoah national park in Virginia and the Great Smoky Mountain national park in Tennessee and North Carolina.

Kentucky now is engaged in a plan to raise $2,000,000 to purchase the land for the park. The section around Mammoth Cave abounds in beautiful scenery and lies within easy reach of residents of the central eastern part of the country.

SCOUTS' INFLUENCE TRACED IN MANHOOD

Leaders of Movement Will Attempt to Secure 18,000
Members in State

Milwaukee—(P)—The influence of the Boy scout that is reflected in the development of a high type of manhood and unselfish service to individuals and the home community may soon be extended to every section of Wisconsin.

Enrollment of 18,000 of Wisconsin's youth in the world-wide organization is the goal of a movement in which the aid of some of the Badger state's leading businessmen and educators has been enlisted.

Under the direction of W. W. Shaver, Chicago, former Eau Claire newspaper man, aided by a citizens committee headed by Charles Davies of Racine, a campaign is being conducted to organize Wisconsin that all of Wisconsin's young manhood may enjoy the benefits of scoutdom.

At the present time, approximately 12,000 boys participate in Boy Scout activities in Wisconsin, representing only a small portion of the 183,000 youths of Badgerdom.

A fund of $12,000 is being raised to finance the field work and most of this sum has been pledged by prominent business men, Mr. Shaver announced Tuesday. As soon as it is assured five or six scout executives will commence the work of organizing the many places in Wisconsin that have no Boy scout councils.

There are councils in 16 of the larger cities of the state and it is planned to organize councils in the other important "key" cities. Under the plan as outlined by Mr. Shaver each council will father the Scout work in its own city and in a large adjacent territory, not only in cities and villages but in farm districts

IT'S Fresh

Those who grow coffee, the brokers and dealers who sell it, those who roast it—every leading factor in the immense coffee business—KNOW that coffee must be fresh to be good.

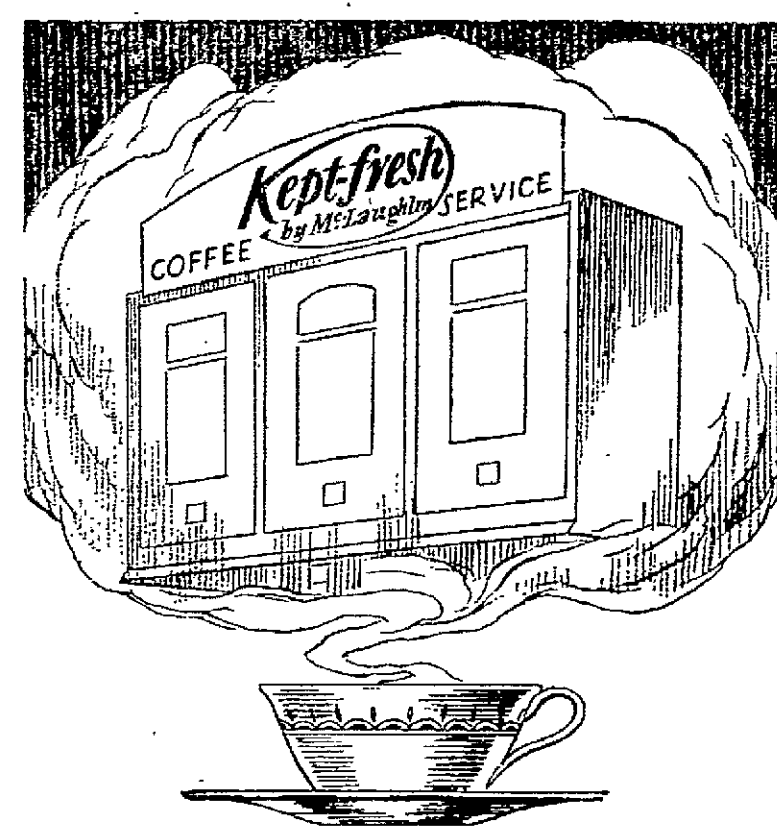

But apparently the average housewife and the great public at large does not know that fresh coffee only, makes good coffee.

Delays in using coffee after it is roasted and ground—packing it and stocking it on the grocers' shelves for an indefinitely long period, greatly impairs its goodness and causes it to spoil.

McLaughlin "Kept-Fresh" Coffee is delivered to grocers in the bean, fresh from the roaster. It is kept fresh in an air-tight cabinet. It is fresh when you buy it.

Take a pound of this famous coffee home TODAY. It makes the most perfect cup ever offered for your enjoyment.

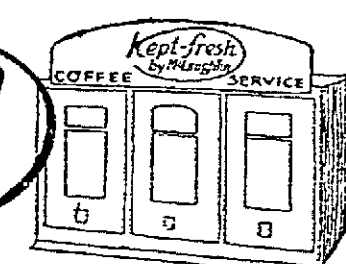

You, too, will realize that fresh coffee is what you have always wanted.

THANKSGIVING MENU

Prepared for the Appleton Service Stores

Clip and save these Thanksgiving Dinner recipes. The recipes for the following menu will be continued until Thanksgiving week.
CALIFORNIA OYSTER COCKTAIL
Salted Almonds—Olives—Celery
Broiled Sweetbread
Roast Turkey Oyster Dressing
Giblet Sauce Cranberry Jelly
Succotash Baked Squash
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Waldorf Salad
Plum Pudding Hard Sauce
Cheese Crackers

FRESH FRUIT COCKTAIL

Select grapefruit, oranges, bananas, pineapple and white grapes when in season. Use about equal portions of each. Remove all seeds, membrane and skin. Chill thoroughly, sweeten if necessary or add maraschino syrup. Arrange in cocktail glasses; place a cherry on top of each glass. Serve very cold.

BROILED SWEETBREADS

Cut the cooked sweetbreads in halves lengthwise and brush over with melted butter and broil, having a moderate heat, about 5 minutes. Turn several times and baste with melted butter at least once. Place on a hot platter spread with creamed butter to which 1 teaspoonful of lemon juice has been added.

OYSTER STUFFING

1½ cups soft bread crumbs
1-3 cup butter or substitute melted
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups oysters
½ cup oysters liquid.
Put crumbs in a bowl, add butter, parsley, salt, pepper, lemon, oysters, cut in halves, add oyster liquid. Mix well before placing in fowl.

GIBLET SAUCE

Pour off liquid in pan in which turkey or chicken was roasted. From this liquid skim 5 tablespoons of fat, return fat to roasting pan and add 2 tablespoons of flour, stirring until smooth and brown; gradually add 3 cups of stock in which giblets were cooked. Stir until thick, season and add the giblets finely chopped.

CRANBERRY JELL

Wash one pint of Cranberries. Add three-fourths cupful sugar and two-thirds cupful boiling water. Boil ten minutes. Pour into cold, wet molds. When cool, cover and set in the refrigerator.

SUCCOTASH

Take equal quantities of cooked corn and cooked string beans or cooked lima beans. Season with a teaspoon of onion juice, butter and salt.

When good things taste their best you'll find this coffee present . . . and wherever you see it sold you'll usually find other things also are just a little better.

Sold by the Appleton Service Stores and many other Grocers, Meat Markets, etc.

LIFE SHARES WORK OF TEXAS REPRESENTATIVE

Uvalde, Texas—(P)—Voters in the twentieth congressional district in Texas thought they were electing on representative in congress when they elected John N. Garner of Uvalde. But since have discovered they had elected a second and unofficial one, John N. Garner.

Fort twenty-five years the wife of a gentleman from Texas has been secretary. She is actively concerned in all his business and political affairs. It is largely through her efforts that the official representative is able to keep pace with the large volume of business which passes through their hands.

"We follow a set program in the discharge of our duties while in Washington," Mrs. aGarner says. "A lunch Mr. Garner goes to his work and I get busy with the correspondence and clerical work for the rest of the day."

When the aGarners come home made the official representative games and hunts in the district, but an unofficial one keeps right along with the correspondence that follows them. She has fitted up a little office for him here.

GARY'S SUCCESSOR IS CALLED "HUMAN ADDING MACHINE"

James Farrell is 'Great American Business Man' as Portrayed in Novels

New York—"His mind is an automatic cash register and adding machine combined."

This is the remark made by a former business associate about James A. Farrell, president of the U. S. Steel Co., and probable successor to the late Judge Gary as its directing genius.

It describes Farrell aptly. The new leader of this great $2,500,000,000 corporation seems almost more like a character from some modern novel than a real, flesh and blood man. He is the type of the Great American Business Man carried to the logical extreme of its development.

Farrell is a mountain of a man, well over six feet tall and weighing around 225 pounds—and none of it is excess weight. In keeping with his role as apothecosis of the industrial leader, he began at the very bottom, a day laborer on a 12-hour shift.

His mind, which is one of the most capable business instruments in America, is packed to the brim with facts. There is a bewildering array of these facts; they lie right where it can be found. Offhand, and without consulting any notes, Farrell can give a questioner a dizzying list of details about the Steel Corporation and its business.

He can cite obscure items about the business, exports, profits and management of each of the corporation's subsidiary plants. He can tell where dozens of the company's ships are. He can reel off a long string of facts about the various foreign ports where these ships call; can tell their depth of water, their port and custom charges, their rail and wharf facilities—things that no living mortal would be expected to carry in his head.

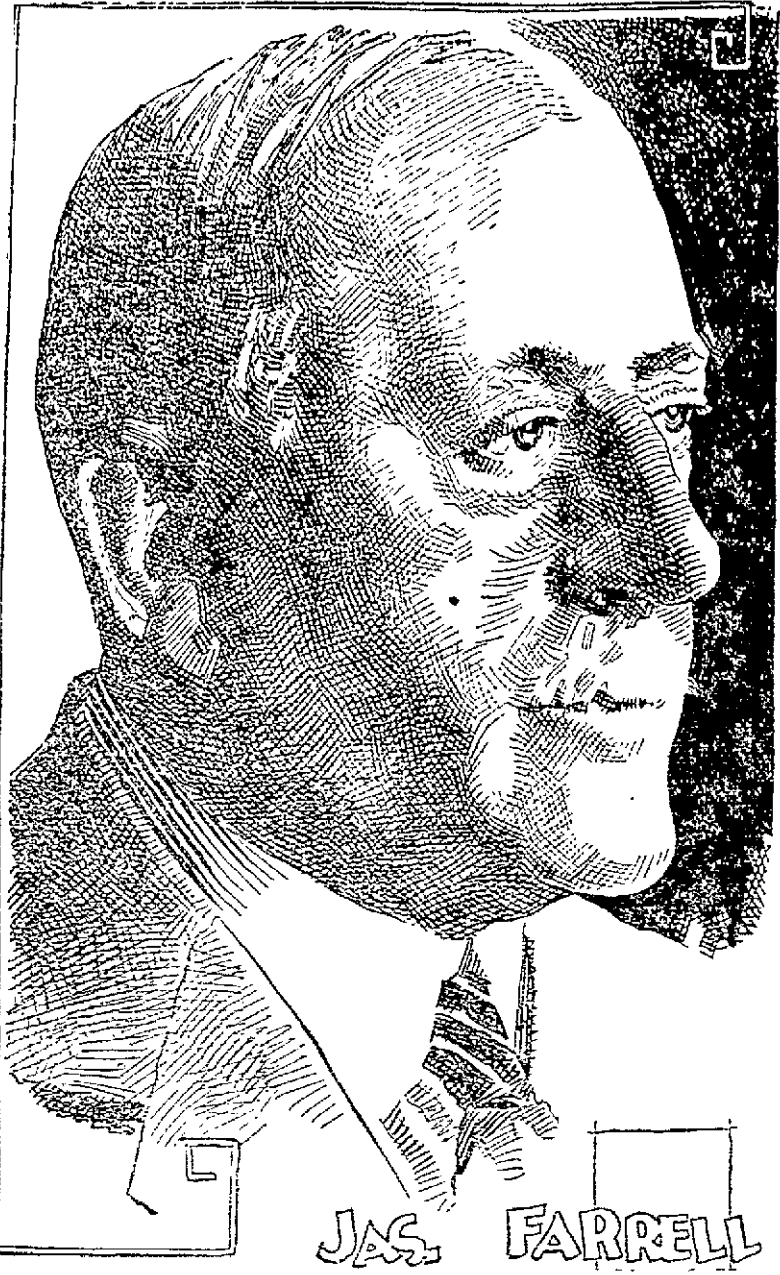

Steel men are still talking about the time that Farrell, as a witness in the government's unsuccessful suit to dissolve the steel trust, occupied the stand for nine solid days, and answered questions through all of that period without once resorting to notes or memoranda.

A HARD WORKER
Such a brain full of information postulates a tremendous capacity for work. Farrell today, standing at the top of the ladder, works just as hard as he did years ago when he was just one of the hands. Daily he puts in a full day at his office; and every night when he goes home he takes enough work with him to last some men for another full day.

From all of this it may be gathered that Farrell, from the very start, has thought of one thing only—business. He was born in 1863 in New Haven, Conn., the son of a sea captain who was lost at sea during Farrell's childhood. At 15 Farrell gave up his dream of a college education and went to work as a day laborer in a New Haven steel mill, working the full 12-hour shift which, in those days, was universal in the steel industry.

Fourteen months later he was made a mechanic. He spent his evenings studying, preparing everlastingly for the upward climb that he was sure lay ahead of him. His study and application brought their rewards, for by the time he was 21 he had moved to Pittsburgh and become foreman in charge of more than 300 workers.

"NOT AN EASY ROAD"

BECAME A SALESMAN
It was Farrell's hope to become a salesman, however, and shortly thereafter his wish was gratified. Here his upward study of the steel business began. He was not the "great" man the other salesmen were, and he did not have the savvy of manner and ease of approach that the high-priced salesman usually cultivates; but he knew more about steel than any of them, and the men with whom he did business soon found it out. Three years later he was sales manager for his company; at 30 he was general manager of the whole concern.

He lived close to the mill. For years he hardly went out of sight of its sprawling, ugly buildings. Often he was called out of bed at night to go over and straighten out some mishap. He lived and breathed steel.

Then came the great steel consolidation with the United States Steel Corporation emerging supreme. Farrell, his company absorbed by the new firm, became foreign sales agent for the entire company. Once again he proved that the best kind of salesman is the energetic man who knows more about his subject than any of his competitors.

BOOSTED SALES
Foreign sales of steel were around $35,000,000 a year when Farrell took charge. Within eight years they had risen to $90,000,000 a year. Farrell found ways of reducing the cost of overseas operations to a fraction of their former size. He induced the Steel Corporation to acquire its own fleet for foreign trade, and devised a system whereby the vessels carried other cargoes besides steel and thus were able to operate more economically than most rivals.

So, in 1911, Farrell became president of the corporation. And now he is slated to succeed Gary as supreme arbiter of its destinies.

Farrell himself realizes that the road to the top is a road that can be traveled only by those who are willing to treat themselves, their bodies and their minds, as machines. He once remark-

He must study while others play. His reading must be limited largely to books, magazines and papers that will help him to acquire facts that will give him a better understanding of whatever business or subject he is determined to master."

Farrell did it. As a result, he is stepping into the leadership of one of the largest industrial organizations on earth, wielding a power greater than that of many kings.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

This week we are considering in connection with the informative double situations which are of a more difficult character than those that usually arise. Two hands are given each day and the answers on the next day.

♣ X-X-X

Both of these hands are held by North: south (Dealer) has bid one No. Trump, and West doubled. What should North declare?
No. 7. North should bid two Spades. The balance of the Spade strength is undoubtedly in the South or West hand—not held over North by East. At least four Spade tricks are reasonably sure, and the Ace of Hearts adds to the strength of the combined hands. That, plus a No Trump in the South hand makes a game at Spades probable and makes it advantageous that the bid should be interpolated when it will show strength, and not later when it might be made with length but weakness. With a side Ace, a five-card suit headed by K-J is strong enough to bid under these conditions. Without the Ace, the bid would not be advisable on the first round.

No. 8. North should bid two No. Trumps. A Minor bid under such circumstances is advisable only when the strength of the hand is wholly in the suit named. With strength in two suits and a five-card Minor, there is a better chance for game at No. Trump than at the Minor. Making this distinction between Minors and Majors gives important information. When a Minor is called over the partner's doubled No Trump, it shows strength in that Minor but no other help for the No Trump. Calling a Major over partner's doubled No Trump does not deny other strength. If North and South had a score, Diamonds should be bid with Hand No. 8. With a score, the partner of a No. Trumpster treats a strong five-card Minor just as he would a Major at a love score.

Today's hands are held by South; the first round bidding has been:

STRANGE GODS RULE OKLAHOMA, DECLARE GOVERNOR'S ENEMIES

Johnston's Opponents Would Try Him for His Religious Beliefs

Oklahoma City—"Strange Gods" are now causing the latest political rumpus out in the great open spaces of Oklahoma.

The red cross of Rosicrucianism has supplanted as a political issue the fiery cross which the Kluxers once burned on every knoll of the state.

For, among many other charges which the enemies of Governor Henry S. Johnston of Oklahoma hurl in his teeth as just and true cause why he should be ousted is the charge that he is a Rosicrucianist, a follower of the red cross which had its disciples, Pagan and Christian, over all the world long years ago; the cross which has witchcraft, alchemy and sorcery as its creed.

To be sure, even enemies know that no man in this country may be condemned with or without a trial for religious convictions or his philosophies.

PRIVATE SECRETARY

Therefore, they skirt about Robin Hood's barn to get the desired result. Members of the legislature who are opposed to Governor Johnston, charge that he is under the undue influence of his confidential secretary, Mrs. O. Hammond, the "Colonel House" of the administration, and as one form of proof of her "baleful influence" they point to the conversion of the governor to her philosophy or religion of Rosicrucianism.

Governor Johnston denies that he is a retail Rosicrucianist in the sense that he pays dues to The Rosicrucian Fellowship with headquarters at Oceanside, Calif., the American center of the cult; and in record of his membership is found in the Oceanside roster.

But he adds that he "believes the Rosicrucianism Fellowship to be a powerful and persuasive presentation."

In proof thereof, the governor is a complete vegetarian, which is one of the instances of the modern Rosicrucian creed. A plate of apples, onions, grapes or melons is constantly upon the gubernatorial desk. In fact, the first suspicion of his Rosicrucianistic tendencies came from the presents of onions and apples which he was constantly showering upon reporters, urging them to "eat foods of health."

POWER OF STARS

In addition, he proved himself a believer in the power of the stars on a certain day when he refused to sign a bill until between 11:26 and 12:30 p. m. of the next Thursday, "because," as he explained, "all the signs of the zodiac will be favorable then."

The case was clinched when the governor admitted that he had a great interest in the occult, when he expounded the science of numbers to his Bible classes, and made constant references to the astrological signs in his sermons and public addresses.

The governor has stated that Mrs. Hammond never heard of Rosicrucianism until the papers accused her of it.

Mrs. Hammond's uncle, Judge James R. Armstrong, is supposed to have turned the governor and his secretary toward the Rosicrucianistic cult. He took instructions from a Hindu Yogi who held classes in Oklahoma City and is said to have a great library of occult works.

WHAT IS IT?

Just what is Rosicrucianism, anyway? This cult of the old alchemists has strong hold upon this modern world today as is proven by the fact that libraries the country over tell of a complete denuding of their shelves which held books on this subject. Christian Rosenkreutz, who died in 1484, is supposed to be the father of the cult. Some say "that the name came from him, although a preferred explanation is that it comes from "ros" meaning "dew," was supposed to be the most powerful dissolvent of gold, used by the alchemists of old. The cross symbolized the four elements of ancient physics—body, mind, desire and will.

Original Rosicrucianism was rife with magic and alchemy. The quest for the eternal flame and "the philosopher's stone" cluttered its ancient ritual.

STRANGE TALES

Old manuscript of the Rosicrucians are full of weird tales.

There are tales of peasants finding mysterious iron-studded flat stones in a field, raising them to find steps leading deep down into the earth, following the steps until they came into a great illumined room, where sat a bent figure in a blinding white light; of how they swooned as they approached the figure and revived in blackness, climbed back up the thousands of steps into the world once more, replaced the stone, ran away to tell the story, but returning, never found the stone again.

There are tales of opened tombs and the bodies of beautiful golden-haired girls swimming in a yellow oil, the oil of gold which was supposed to be the fuel of the everburning flame.

The stars and planets have a potency in this cult. Saturn is considered auspicious to reason and intelligence; Jupiter, controls power and action; Mars, irascibility; Venus, appetites; the Sun, sensitiveness; Mercury, expression.

Rosicrucians say that—All things visible are invisibly produced by the contention of light with darkness. That—

Every object contains a certain possible deposit of the jewel of light, the basic element which the alchemists sought. That—

We humans are only living within other worlds. That—All minerals have the possibilities of plants within themselves, just as plants have mineral attributes within themselves.

TRAVEL BY THOUGHT

Rosicrucianism stresses that human beings can travel by thought—can move at will wherever they choose. Man is where his consciousness is, the cult affirms, and he needs but to send his thought waves to Timbuctoo or Kalamazoo to be there. Quite an asset to a politician. Modern Rosicrucians, however, accept only so much of the original tenets of the philosophy as they care to, making symbols of the rest. They stress vegetarianism, the power of the stars, and thought migration.

tion. Their magazine, "The Rosy Cross," is filled with subsidy and egg-plant recipes, warnings of the disasters from alcohol and tobacco, exhortations to wear no furs or feathers. The stars, however, play as big a part in modern Rosicrucianism as in the day when a white-bearded astrologist scanned the heavens.

The Rosicrucians await with impatience our entrance into the Aquarian age, when the earth enters the constellation of Aquarius. This will begin about 2054 A. D. and last 2156 years.

GREAT ERA TO BE

This era, they claim, will be marked by obtained endeavors along the lines of science, religion, mystery and altruism.

The governor's enemies will charge that Mrs. Hammond maintains "an occult and baleful influence" over the governor. It seems that neither Mrs. Hammond's husband, Dr. O. O. Hammond, state health commissioner, nor the governor's attractive wife take this "baleful influence" very seriously, as the two families have shared the same house for years, and are the closest friends today.

Cute little Mrs. Johnson only smiles off the whole rumpus with the remark that the governor is getting his taste of what she endured in the way of Oklahoman criticism for wearing a décolleté gown and dancing at the inaugural ball.

Special Committee Arranges Program at Council Chambers Monday Evening

New London—An interesting program has been arranged by a special committee for the Good Book week celebration, which is to be held Monday evening at the common council chambers. Those in charge of the program include Mrs. R. J. McMahon, Mrs. E. C. Jost and Mrs. William Butler. Children from all schools are invited to take part in the book characterizations, and prizes will be offered to the two best among the girls and the same number from among the boys who take part. Each child appearing will portray some character from a favorite book and will give a short report of the plot of the book.

Miss Marjorie Stanley, librarian, will give a talk regarding the books in the library which are of interest to young readers, and Mrs. E. N. Caley will read a paper on Guiding the Young Child's Reading. Music will be an interesting part of the program. Miss Eugenia Bittner, music instructor in the public schools, will present a group of the junior glee club singers in several renditions.

On Friday evening at the city hall the diplomas will be presented to the members of the Vacation Reading club. The diplomas will be presented by Dr. G. T. Dawley, president of the library board. The reading club has 33 members.

Various members of the Civic league, who have sponsored the Good Book week program have expressed a wish that more parents attend these meetings. The interest is slight in comparison to the real interpretation of the work among the young people. Members of the club realize the importance of the right sort of reading, and know too the interest that is shown by the children in the book characterization.

MANY UNFORTUNATES CARED FOR IN STATE

275 Unmarried Girl Mothers Given Shelter Last Year by Salvation Army

An average of one girl from every county in the state is given aid and care at the Salvation Army home and hospital in Milwaukee every year, according to information recently made public. Last year 275 Wisconsin unmarried girl mothers and their babies were cared for at the home. It has been the practice of the organization to help any girl from any part of the state who has come for aid.

Several other Wisconsin institutions are maintained by the Salvation Army, among them an industrial home where jobs are found for men and women and a summer camp at Army lake near Milwaukee where mothers and children may spend a ten day vacation as guests of the organization. Last year 3,000 persons received help at the industrial home and a like number at the camp.

The local branch of the Salvation Army has carried on an extensive social and evangelistic campaign in Appleton during the time it has been in existence here and on Nov. 14 will begin a drive to raise $4,000 to carry on the work during the coming year. Mayor Albert C. Rule is chairman of the campaign committee and L. O. Wissman, cashier of the First National bank, treasurer. All subscriptions should either be mailed to Mr. Wissman or handed in person direct.

A call for volunteers to put the campaign over was made during the last few days and workers asked to attend a meeting and dinner at 6:15 Monday evening, Nov. 14, at the Y. M. C. A. when final arrangements for the work will be completed. According to present plans the downtown section of the city will be divided into districts and two men assigned each district. Persons wishing to offer their services have been asked to communicate with Mayor Albert Rule or Captain Edward Shaw of the Salvation Army.

ANNOUNCE MAILING DATES FOR PARCELS

Customs Make Is Impossible to Insure Immediate Foreign Delivery

Mailing dates on parcels, letters, and other articles destined to persons residing in foreign countries have been issued in a recent bulletin from the postal department received at the local office, according to Fred Felix Wetzel, acting postmaster. The dates given are approximately the latest dates on which mail can be accepted with promise of delivery before Christmas.

The office cannot insure immediate delivery of parcel post, it is said, because of custom regulations. Should all mail be detained until the last moment the customs offices will be so cluttered that considerable delay will result. The request is also made that articles be mailed as soon as possible. Such procedure is the best assurance or rapid delivery.

Approximately New York closing dates for mail to be delivered before Christmas are as follows:

Argentina, Dec. 8; Australia, Nov. 12; Austria, Dec. 10; Bahamas, Dec. 16; Belgium, Dec. 15; Bermuda, Dec. 21; Brazil, Dec. 8; Bulgaria, Dec. 10; Canal Zone, Dec. 15; Ceylon, Nov. 30; China, Nov. 20; Czechoslovakia, Danzig and Denmark, Dec. 10; England, Dec. 15; Finland, Dec. 10; France and Germany, Dec. 15; Greece, Dec. 10; India, Nov. 23; Ireland, Dec. 15; Italy, Dec. 13; Japan, Dec. 5; Netherlands, Dec. 15; Nicaragua, Dec. 3; Norway, Dec. 10; Persia, Nov. 23; Philippine Islands, Nov. 20; Poland, Dec. 10; Russia, Dec. 10; Scotland, Dec. 15; South Africa, Nov. 23; Sweden, Dec. 10; Switzerland, Dec. 15; and Virgin Island (United States) Dec. 15.

Y. M. C. A. MEMBERS TO PUBLISH NEWSPAPER

Publication of a Y. M. C. A. news paper, by members of boys and mens departments of the association was started this week and the first issue will be out Saturday. The paper, named the Live Y'er, will be issued once a month by the boys with the cooperation of the men. It will contain all articles of interest to local association members.

After the first issue, Saturday, the boys' council will take care of the youths' part in publishing the paper and a staff will be chosen, to write department articles.

Football paper gets its name from the fact that originally a device of foot's cap and bells was used as a watermark for paper of that size.

AFTER PERIOD OF TORTURE, MAN FINDS RELIEF FROM ITCHING

'Kin now entirely healed

Charlestown (Boston), Mass., Dec. 18.—"Last June I had an itching irritation on my back, principally between the shoulders, and also on the back of my hands, extending to the shoulders. The skin was apparently clear of any disorder, but the itching was intense. After a vigorous rubbing with a Turkish towel there would appear two spots, about an inch apart, which bled from the effects of the rubbing. I used Bay Rum and other lotions before I tried your Resinol Ointment. At bedtime my back received a thorough washing with Resinol Soap and a very generous application of Ointment, after which I would rest quite comfortably until about two or three in the morning, when I received another application. A third upon arising would be enough to make me feel at ease during the day. Thanks to the above treatment, the trouble is now entirely healed." (Signed) John W. Matthews, 1 Crystal Place.

Iron-Hand Of Calles Stopped Revolt Without Sacrifice Of Peons' Lives

BY ROBERT HAMMOND MURRAY

New York—The recent abortive revolution in Mexico, speedily crushed by President Calles, is marked by these significant facts—

First—A revolutionary movement of the type so familiar in the past has raised its head, but a stable government still directs the country after slight loss of life and without any property destruction.

Second—Instead of thousands of poor peons being sacrificed upon the bloody altar of the ambitions of a few selfish leaders, less than a hundred lives were lost.

Third—It was the leaders, not their unlettered followers, who first paid the penalty. And it should be remembered that they were of the type of men who threatened the sword. They died as they chose to live.

Fourth—In keeping himself and his country out of trouble, the Mexican executive who maintains order south of the Rio Grande is helping keep the United States out of trouble—which appears to be what peace-loving American citizens and American officials alike want.

I have just reached New York from Mexico City. During the past few months I have observed the unfolding of events that reached their climax in the revolt of garrisons, the cry of revolution, and then a succession of executions.

REBELLION IS BORN

If you can imagine candidates for the presidency in the United States going about the country proclaiming that they have the support of most of the army, and that if they are not elected they will seize the power by force of arms, you may picture the recent campaign conditions in Mexico.

Meanwhile, imagine some of the candidates boring from within the army, offering lavish rewards in motion or money, or both, to generals in return for their assistance in executing a military coup which will remove the existing government and place them in control of the treasury and the administrative machinery.

PETROLEUM OILOR

As usually happens when trouble breaks out in Mexico, a faint but pronounced odor of petroleum permeates the wreckage of the Gomez-Serrano debacle. This indictment does not apply to all of the American oil companies operating there, but unquestionably it does to some.

It is an open secret in Mexico that Gomez made strenuous love to various American petroleum companies in an endeavor to enlist their financial support for his candidacy. Opinions differ as to whether any of the companies invested money in his chances, conditional upon his promises that if he got in office he would modify the prevailing Mexican petroleum legislation to their liking.

Gomez' friends, a month ago, were boasting that he was being supported financially and sentimentally by one petroleum company and that arrangements had been made whereby he was to receive several large shipments of arms and ammunition from the United States. At all events, if certain American oil interests did not have a finger in the Gomez-Serrano pie it was the first piece of pastry of that description that they have overlooked in many years.

It was the petroleum friends of Gomez and Serrano who counseled them to advance the date of their revolt by at least two months. This was done because of the unexpected appointment of a new American Ambassador in the person of Dwight W. Morrow and the announcement of his intention to proceed to Mexico City without delay.

WANTED TO IMPRESS ENVOY

The desirability was represented to Gomez and Serrano of making a prompt demonstration in the field with a view to impressing Morrow in advance of his arrival with the strength and seriousness of their movement and the presumptive weakness of the Calles government. Had they been left to themselves, it is exceedingly doubtful if they would have begun operations much before January or until they were better prepared and assured of a more substantial fighting following than the events of the past ten days proved them to possess.

Mexican ways and standards are not American. They are as different as day from night. In Mexico the accepted custom of close adherence to the principle of "Doing unto others as they would do unto you if they were in your place" dictates the quality of mercy. Most Mexicans are so constituted that they regard an exhibition of mercy as an inherent and vulnerable weakness in him who bestows it.

RESPECT FOR CALLES

Consequently, in their hearts, the people of Mexico, and in particular his enemies, today cherish a much more profound respect for President Calles than they did two weeks ago. The man has shown mettle, and an exhibition of that sort unerringly wins respect, if not love, down there. Mexican presidents do not rule by love. If they try to, their names are apt to appear promptly in the obituary columns or among the list of distinguished exiles on foreign shores.

Without questioning their right to aspire to the presidency, it is nevertheless a fair statement of fact in which I am certain any competent, unprejudiced observer will bear me out, to say that neither Gomez nor Serrano had more than a negligible following or popular support. Serrano had almost none. Their only hopeful lead to power lay through military usurpation.

BOTH MEDIOCRITIES

Both were mediocrities with no background of accomplishment, capacity, or character.

Gomez banked upon conservative and church sympathy, and his suppositious popularity with the generals of the armies. Serrano disputed this following with Gomez.

A humorous feature of the situation as between Gomez and Serrano was this: Both of them could not be president. While for temporary mutual convenience, they were making common cause against Calles and Obregon, it was notoriously apparent that each was figuring on ways and devices whereby at the proper time he might eliminate the other by fair means or foul. Had they succeeded in ousting Calles and expunging Obregon politically then it would have been dog-eat-dog between Gomez and Serrano.

Thus, after a fashion, for once the petroleum people unwittingly did Calles and Mexico and then own government a favor. Thanks to Calles' energy and to his control of the army, Washington may take satisfaction to itself for still having one reasonably well functioning and responsible government to deal with in Mexico. The alternative was no government at all or two or three rival revolutions.

olutionary governments scattered over the landscape, each operating on its own hook and accepting no responsibility in the conduct of Mexico's international relations.

Any other outcome would have released upon the country armies of rival Mexican factions to the inconceivable if not actual impalement of Americans and then interests and a general reversion to the chaotic conditions which prevailed in Mexico for several years subsequent to 1914.

31 COUNTY NURSES EMPLOYED IN STATE

Act as Health Supervisors and Instructors in Rural School

Madison —(P)—Thirty-one counties in the state employ nurses for rural school and community health work. This number does not include Milwaukee where the nursing service is chiefly urban.

The counties which employ nurses, according to the state board of health are: Ashland, Chippewa, Crawford, Columbia, Dane, Grant, Iron, Jackson, Jefferson, Juneau, Kenosha, La Crosse, Langlade, Lincoln, Manitowish, Marinette, Outagamie, Ozaucus, Racine, Rock, Sauk, Sheboygan, Trempealeau, Vernon, Vilas, Walworth, Washington, Waushara, Waupaca, Winnebago and Wood.

County nursing was authorized by law in 1913 when the legislature empowered counties to engage workers of this type. Two nurses already were employed in rural tuberculosis work, the board says, one in Sheboygan and the other in Milwaukee at what was the Greenfield sanatorium. In 1914 the first county nurse employed by the county board began work.

The duties of a county nurse as provided by the statute are:

To act as health supervisor for all schools not already having school inspection either by a physician or school nurse, to assist the superintendent of the poor, to instruct in tuberculosis patients and others in preventing the spread of tuberculosis, to assist in reporting existing cases of tuberculosis and other communicable diseases; investigating cases of delinquency, neglect and dependency of juveniles, including state aid to dependent children; in counties not employing a probation officer, cases of non-school attendance in districts where a school attendance officer is not employed; cases of infirmity on child labor laws, cases of crippled children due to infantile paralysis or other causes; to act as health instructor throughout the county and to perform such other duties as may be assigned to her.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
A woman's gloves and handbag, found at the scene of the murder, are traced to Miss St. Clair. When Markham threatens her with arrest she is flippant and unconcerned. Vance later insists she could not have killed Benson and by means of measurements demonstrates that the murderer was six feet tall or thereabouts and a good marksman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI
Once more Vance went to the door, and summoning Snitkin, returned the pistol.
"The District Attorney thanks you," he said. "And will you be good enough to fetch Mrs. Platz. We wish to chat with her."
Turning back to the room, he smiled amiably at Markham.
"I desire to do all the conversing with the lady this time, if you don't mind. There are potentialities in Mrs. Platz which you entirely overlooked when you questioned her yesterday."
Markham was interested, though sceptical.
"You have the floor," he said.

Saturday, June 15, 5:30 p. m.)
When the housekeeper entered she appeared even more composed than when Markham had first questioned her. There was something at once sullen and indomitable in her manner, and she looked at him with a slightly challenging expression.
Markham merely nodded to her, but Vance stood up and indicated a low tufted Morris chair near the fireplace, facing the front windows. She sat down on the edge of it, resting her elbows on its broad arms.
"I have some questions to ask you, Mrs. Platz," Vance began, fixing her sharply with his gaze. "And it will be best for everyone if you tell the whole truth. You understand me—eh, what?"

The easy-going, half-whimsical manner he had taken with Markham had disappeared. He stood before the woman stern and implacable.
At his words she lifted her head. Her face was blank, but her mouth was set stubbornly, and a smouldering look in her eyes told of a suppressed anxiety.
Vance waited a moment and then went on, enunciating each word with distinctness.
"At what time, on the day Mr. Benson was killed, did the lady call here?"
The woman's gaze did not falter, but the pupils of her eyes dilated.
"There was nobody here,"
"Oh, yes there was, Mrs. Platz," Vance's tone was assured. "What time did she call?"
"Nobody was here, I tell you," she persisted.

Vance lit a cigarette with interminable deliberation, his eyes resting steadily on hers. He smoked placidly until her gaze dropped. Then he glanced nearer to her, and said quietly:
"If you tell the truth no harm will come to you. But if you refuse any information you will find yourself in trouble. The withholding of evidence is a crime, you know, and the law will show you so."
He made a sign with his hand, and Markham, who was standing behind the door, came with interest.
The woman now began to show signs of agitation. She drew in her breath, and her lips were quivering.
"On God's name, I swear I never saw anybody here," she said, her voice quivering with emotion.
"Let me see your hands," Vance said, and she held them out. "What time was the lady here?"
She set her lips together and said:

WE DO FAMILY WASHINGS BEST
Damp Wash 4c a pound
Mon. and Tues.
31c a pound Wed., Thurs. and Fri. Phone 567
Uneeda Damp Wash Laundry
Rough Dry Washing Flat Work Ironed—10c a pound

Peerless National Laundry

a whole minute there was silence in the room. Vance smoked quietly, but Markham held his cigar motionless between his thumb and forefinger in an attitude of expectancy.
"Ann Vance," impressive voice demanded. "What time was she here?"
The woman climbed her hands with a spasmodic gesture, and thrust her head forward.
"I tell you—I saw it!"
Vance made a contemptuous movement of his hand, and smiled coldly.
"It's no use," he told her. "You're acting stupidly. We're here to tell the truth—and you're going to tell us."
"I've told you the truth."
"I'm going to be necessary for the district attorney here to order you placed in custody."
"I've told you the truth," she repeated.
Vance crushed out his cigar decisively in an ash-receiver on the table.
"Listen, Mrs. Platz. Since you refuse to tell me about the young woman who was here that afternoon, I'm going to tell you about her."
His manner was easy and cynical, and the woman watched him suspiciously.
"In the afternoon of the day your employer was shot, the doorman, perhaps you had been informed of by Mr. Benson that he was expecting a caller, what? Anyhow, you answered, the door and admitted a charming young lady."
"You showed her into this room," Vance continued, "and what do you think, my dear madam—she took that very chair on which you are resting so unconcernedly?"
He paused, and smiled tantalizingly.
"Then," he continued, "you served tea to the young lady and Mr. Benson. After a bit she departed, and Mr. Benson went upstairs to dress for dinner."
"I see, Mrs. Platz. I happen to know."
He lit another cigarette.

Did he notice the young lady particularly? If not, till describe her to you. She was rather short—perhaps is the word. She had dark hair and eyes, and she was dressed quietly.
A change had come over the woman. Her eyes stared; her cheeks were now gray; and her breathing had become audible.
"Now, Mrs. Platz," demanded Vance sharply, "what have you to say?"
She drew a deep breath.
"There wasn't anybody here," she said doggedly. There was something almost admirable in her obstinacy.
Vance considered a moment. Markham was about to speak, but evidently thought better of it, and sat watching the woman fixedly.
"Your attitude is understandable," Vance observed finally. "The young lady, of course, was well known to you, and you had a personal reason for not wanting it known she was here."
At these words she sat up straight, a look of terror on her face.
"I never saw her before," she cried; then stopped abruptly.
"Ah!" Vance gave her an amused leer. "You had never seen the young lady before—ah, what? That's quite possible. But it's immaterial. She's a nice girl, though, even if she did have a dish of tea with your employer alone in his home."
"Did she tell you she was here?"
The woman's voice was listless. The reaction to her tense obscurity had left her apathetic.
"Not exactly," Vance replied. "But it wasn't necessary. I knew without her informing me. . . . Just when did she arrive, Mrs. Platz?"
"About a half-hour after Mr. Benson got here from the office."

SELECT CANDIDATES FOR NATIONAL MEET

Progressives of State Also Select Delegates to Milwaukee Convention

Madison—(AP)—In six of the eleven congressional districts of Wisconsin progressive candidates for delegates to the national Republican convention have been selected.
In the first, fourth fifth and eighth districts, no announcement has been made of the candidates, and in the ninth district a delegation to the Milwaukee Progressive meeting Nov. 15 was selected, and empowered to pick convention delegate candidates.
The candidates so far announced are:
Second district—C. J. Schoenfeldt, Beaver Dam; Oscar Muhin, Sheboygan.
Third district—Mrs. George Engstrom, Viola; Lieut. Gov. H. A. J. J. Stoughton.
Sixth district—James Skole, Oshkosh; F. C. Aebischer, Chilton.
Seventh district—W. V. Kidder, La Crosse; W. J. Rush, Neillsville.
Ninth district—Dr. W. C. Sullivan, Kaukauna; William Gehrke, Sturgeon Bay.
Eleventh district—George A. Nelson, Milwaukee; T. R. Patterson, Superior.
Delegates to the state Progressive conference at Milwaukee have been selected in the six congressional districts. At this conference four candidates for delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention will be named, and plans will be made for the 1928 delegates campaign. It is expected that the question as to whether the delegates should go to the convention uncommitted or whether they should be pledged to support some Progressive leader also will be considered.
SUGGEST DELEGATES
Those suggested for delegates-at-large at the conferences held up to this time are Sen. John J. Blaine, Roosevelt; Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Jr.; Madison; Zona Gale, Portage; and Congressman U. H. Peavy, Washburn. Congressman Peavy was suggested as a delegate-at-large by the eleventh district conference held at Ashland, and the other three were selected by the third district conference.

Preference for Sen. George W. Norris, Nebraska, as the candidate to be supported by the Wisconsin Progressive delegation was expressed in the sixth and eleventh district conferences.
Herman L. Ekern has been endorsed as the Progressive candidate for governor in 1928 at conferences held in the sixth and tenth districts.
Because of a rule adopted at the last Republican national convention, Wisconsin will be permitted only four delegates-at-large at the Republican national convention in 1928. Instead of seven, the representation in years past.
The rule, adopted at the 1924 national convention provides that every state be represented by four delegates-at-large, but that if the Republicans carried the state at the last national election, the state be permitted to three extra "at large" delegates.

MEN HONEST UNTIL WOMEN ARE AROUND

Madison—(AP)—Perfectly honest men when they come in contact with women are inclined to lie, cheat and steal. This is the inference drawn at the University of Virginia and presented by Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin who has just returned from conducting an educational survey in the eastern state.

University of Virginia alumni are now conducting a campaign to keep girls from entering that school on the grounds that it would lower the moral standard, Prof. O'Shea said.
"Standards at the university, in fact, in most Virginia schools, are unusually high," Prof. O'Shea declared, "and it is generally felt this is due to the fact that women are not admitted."
"There is little cheating, lying or stealing at the University of Virginia. The students do a great deal of their studying out of doors. When they go to lunch, they leave books, clothing and purses lie where they are and always find them when they return.

"The honor system is used there to a great extent. Why is it that this system has never proven successful at a coeducational school like Wisconsin? What do women do to men?"

Surprise Program
Boys of the Y. M. C. A. will be guests at a surprise social Friday evening in the boys' lobby according to Irving Buck, assistant boys' work secretary. An unexpected entertainment program has been received at the association but it will not be revealed to the boys until they arrive. Robert Naylor, department mayor, is in charge of the social.

SATURDAY GAMES
APPLETON VS. KAUKAUNA (non-conf.)
 E. Green Bay vs. Sheboygan.
 W. Green Bay vs. Fond du Lac.
 Oshkosh vs. Marinette.
 Manitowish vs. Two Rivers (non-conf.)

More than half of Kaukauna will move to the neighboring city of Appleton Saturday afternoon, according to plans made at the Kau City, in an attempt to cheer its high school football team to the crowning achievement of its already successful season, a victory over Appleton high school. And with the McAndrews showing the best team developed at Kaukauna, high since the Appleton defeat two years ago, a team that won a conference championship from 15 rivals without a defeat, Kaukauna fans see bright hopes of victory. At Appleton should have an off day. Any way, the Orangemen will know that they have been in a battle, the Kaws contend.

All of which leads up to the fact that ancient rivals Kaukauna and Appleton high schools, are renewing their bitter grid feud here Saturday. Appleton is a favorite for victory, but being the larger school, this is usually true. However, Coach Shields is not taking his smaller rival lightly because of its season's record, and upset of Appleton two years ago. The known fight of Kaukauna teams, especially against Appleton's hated hosts in a game condition prevails as Green Bay, where the annual East-West game is always a tight battle, though one team has been unbeaten and the other has no victories all year.

VETERAN BACKFIELD

Kaukauna has a backfield of veterans, including Esler, Hishon and Kemp of the original "Galloping Ghosts" the speed boys that made the Kaws famous last year. M. Miller, the fullback, last year a half, were star linemen last year but their plugging and fighting ability won them regular rear wall berths when Coach McAndrews looked around for veteran material to plug the holes.

M. Miller with Derus and M. Miller, now in the rear wall, is the only regular linemen from last year in action but Landreman, start center, and Musinski were reserves last year. Hallock, a regular of 1925 in alternation with Hilgenberg, will give the starting call and snow enough stuff to heat out a last year's veteran.

The probable Kaukauna lineup will see Ferguson and Jacobson or Doering at ends, Musinski and W. Miller at tackles, Mau and Hilgenberg or Hallock at guards, Landreman at center, Derus and Esler at halfbacks, M. Miller at fullbacks and Hishon or Kemp at quarterback.

Appleton's starting lineup still is uncertain, but it probably will see Roemer or Strutz and Kuntz halfbacks, Strutz or Bowler, quarter, Johnson, fullback, Harung and Schaefer or Dressing, ends, Abraham and Getis, nose, tackles, Popp and DeYoung, Reisz or Kruse, guards, Rankin, center. At the present time Kruse, veteran linemen, is the only regular who will not start and may not see service at all, though Schaefer and Getis, chow will play with bad injuries of last week.

Appleton should win about 24-0.

New York's Stellar Back May Break Grange Record

BY BILLY EVANS

"Red Grange," formerly known as the "Galloping Ghost" of Illinois, is about to be outgated.

Back in 1923, Grange, then the sensation of the college football world, set a record for running ground that seemed likely to stand for a score of years if not for all time.

Just four years have elapsed and Grange's extraordinary yardage feat is about to be surpassed. As a matter of fact, it would be a great surprise if Frank Brantje, brilliant halfback of New York University, made Grange's feat look like a trifle.

In seven games in 1923 Grange against such formidable opposition as Nebraska, Iowa, Butler, North Carolina, Chicago, Wisconsin and Ohio State, gained 1,280 yards.

While Brantje in the first seven games of the season fell 90 yards short of Grange's performance, with three games still to play, it is certain that he will top "Red's" total of 1,280 yards.

While most of Grange's running was accomplished through sheer speed, in which and runs, forward passes and running through broken field featured, Brantje has polished up his amazing total, largely through line plunging, although here

WON'T BE LONG

JACK KEARNS

It won't be long now before Jack Kearns will know whether he is to collect the $33,333.33 he is asking the courts to make Jack Dempsey pay him. The case is due for settlement soon.

PROMOTERS WRANGLE OVER CHAMP'S BOUTS

ered over the boxing world Friday with promoters wrangling over who will stage the next heavyweight championship fight for Gene Tunney.

Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter wired newspapers that he would come to New York, prepared to sign the champion for a title bout in Chicago next summer.

Turner asserted he was in no way under Richard's management. Billy Gibson, Turner's manager, pointed out that while Tunney was under contract to fight for Richard once in 1928, there was no reason why he could not fight for some one else as well.

CLEVELAND IN NEED OF OVERHAULING NEXT YEAR

Cleveland — The Cleveland club of the American League is one of several clubs that must be completely remodeled if any sort of a showing next year is hoped for.

The pitching staff excepted, only two players are certain of a regular berth. They are Luke Sewell, one of the best catchers in either league, and Joe Sewell, who has few superiors at short.

Luke had one of his best years last season. Joe shipped defensively, largely due to the fact that he seldom had the same combination working with him at second and third.

Three positions in the infield and three in the outfield must be considered as open to the most competent performers.

PRECEDENT AGAINST HEILMANN AS LEADER

Detroit, Mich.—If precedent counts, Harry Heilmann, Detroit's lead-offing outfielder, hasn't a chance to lead the American League in batting this coming year.

Heilmann first led the American League in hitting in 1923. He failed the following year but did in 1925. After failing again in 1926, he did it this past summer.

In other words he has led the league every other year since he first topped the batters—and the campaign of 1923 is not his year!

and there he has interspersed with a long run.

Twice Grange made better than 200 yards registering 263 against Nebraska and 251 in the Northwestern game. Brantje equals this with 215 in the contest with Niagara and 204 against Fordham. He has averaged close to eight yards for every time he has handled the ball since the opening of the season.

"Grids" Welch of Pittsburgh started the season as if he would relegate Grange's record to the also an class. In his last few starts, he has been backed up considerably and, in the Wash neton and Jefferson game simply couldn't get going, so that his record was badly shattered and all hopes of surpassing Grange's mark were lost.

The big test of the year for Brantje will be on Thanksgiving day when New York University plays what Coach Nathan considers the most important game of the year, Nebraska. Meeting Nebraska in New York, undefeated, the year was rated a "ringer" for Grange's feat.

He hopes to run his yardage total to 1,400 yards this year.

MAROONS HOPEFUL OF WRECKING FLAG HOPES OF ILLINI

Illinois Only Unbeaten, Untied Team in 1927 Big Ten Conference Grid Race

Chicago — (AP) — The Western Conference football championship is at stake in only one Big Ten game Saturday the Illinois — Chicago annual meeting at Champaign, but there are indications that Coach Stagg of Chicago is planning to make it a wide-open free-scoring exhibition if he can.

Michigan, with one Big Ten defeat, and Minnesota with one conference tie still are title possibilities, provided Illinois is knocked from its unbeaten perch, but the Michigan and Minnesota contests Saturday have no bearing on their conference rating.

The Chicago squad was given an early start in its psychological preparation for the Illinois battle, when Coach Stagg warned them Thursday night that their captain, Ken Rouse, might miss last of the full game.

MICH. DRAWS CROWD

Michigan again draws the fans only sell out crowd with a prospect of $9,000 in the Wolverine's new stadium. This will be the third meeting Michigan and Navy each having a previous victory.

The Iowa guests of the Wisconsin team will make their eleventh attempt to gain Big Ten victory. The first ten tries have been unsuccessful. Coach Thistlethwaite has been polishing the Wisconsin offense all week, trusting to his line, which stopped Herb Joesting of Minnesota, to reveal anything the Hawkeyes might attempt.

The Northwestern cripples, which have included nearly the entire varsity squad for most of the week are recovering with surprising rapidity and the Indiana sophomore squad will meet a determined bunch of Wild cats in a three successive defeats after a brilliant season opening Minnesota has the prospect of a battle in the snow against Drake Saturday while Purdue will have a chance to try out next year's prospects against Franklin.

PACKERS NOW HOPE TO WIN PRO BANNER

Baymen Must Take Next Four Games in Tri-corner Race

Green Bay—Chasing down the home stretch of the National league pennant chase, the Packers have a corking good chance to win the 1927 championship. Right now the Big Bay Blues are only one game behind the pace setting New York Giants and this margin should be whittled down to a percentage table "half game" by Sunday night as the New Yorkers have a non-league engagement booked while the Bays give battle to Dayton.

Here is where the "4" comes in. If the Packers win the four remaining league games on their schedule, it is hard to figure how they can be kept off the top of the heap. However, a single defeat will puncture the championship dream bubble.

THREE GAMES AWAY
 The Big Bay Blues tangle with the Dayton Triangles here Sunday. Then they start a three game road trip facing the Bears in Chicago on Nov. 20, the Yellow-jackets in Philadelphia Thanksgiving Day, and the Steamrollers in Providence, Dec. 11. The couple of open dates in between Nov. 24 and the Providence affair will probably be filled in with non-league teams, the results of which won't cut any figure in the percentage table.

A glance at the dope bucket shows that, on paper, the Packers have a bit of an edge on Dayton, Philadelphia and Providence. However, the Bear game is the big hurdle for Lambeau & Co. The teams met once this year and the Bruins emerged a victor by a one point margin. However, the Packers are determined to reverse this verdict in the game which will be played at Cubs park, Chicago, a week from Sunday.

TRIO OF TEAMS BUNCHED
 There is no question but that the National league race has slumped down to three clubs, the N. Y. Giants, Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers as every other team in the league has lost three or more games. The N. Y. Yanks, Providence and Cleveland might be considered in the running but the three leaders would have to hit the odds fast in order to have any of the secondary trio climb to the top of the heap.

The Chicago Bears have a tough program ahead. Sunday, the Bruins entertain the Potsville club in the Windy City. The Miners have looked a bit better of late and they may make things interesting. The following Sunday, Nov. 20, the Packers face the Bears and there should be plenty of fireworks.

PLAY CARDS, THEN GIANTS
 Thanksgiving Day, the Bears mix with their old rivals the Chicago Cardinals and this won't be any farther apart than the Bears' jump a team and head for New York where they mix with the Giants on Nov. 27.

Saturday, Dec. 3, sees the Bruins still in the east playing the Yellow-jackets at Frankford and as soon as the game is over both clubs jump on a train and speed to Chicago for another league showdown. Sunday, Dec. 11, DuShan is booked for Cubs park. This is a tough series of games and the Bears won't be a "ringer" team if they emerge with a clean slate.

As said before the Giants are idle in the end of the season. On Dec. 20, the New Yorkers are scheduled to meet against the Chicago Cardinals. They have no home game booked for Thanksgiving.

The clash down the final lap from a race to a point, and the final throw to the line, is a pretty near a sure bet that both the Bears and Giants will drop at least one if not two games.

JOEY SANGOR

Don't overlook "Joey" Sangor of Milwaukee when considering the likely featherweight. Recently at Los Angeles, Sangor won a close decision over the sensational "Bud" Taylor, a big favorite in California. The two drew better than a $30,000 gate and the fans are yelling for a return match. Sangor has been threatening for several years and appears to have arrived finally.

Sangor fights Mickey Cohen at Milwaukee Tuesday night and Phil Zwick, Kaukauna favorite, will meet Billy Bonillas on the same card. Sammy Mandell also will be at the ringside.

THREE EASTERN GRID STARS ARE INELIGIBLE

New York — (AP) — On the eve of important college football games in the east, three star players have been lost to their teams.

Bruce Caldwell was barred from the Yale squad for having played on a Brown freshman team in 1926. Lynn Warren, star fullback of Amherst, was debarred for having been a member of LaFayette's swimming team three years ago.

Captain Harold Cothran of LaFayette forfeited his berth on the squad but game a bride in Miss Peggy Hackett of Washington, D. C. Cathran met Miss Hackett after the Georgetown game last Saturday and a whirlwind courtship resulted in a wedding. He was banished for infraction of the rules.

STAR INDIAN CAGERS SEEK APPLETON GAME

Al Seeger's Worlds' Champion Indians, a basketball team composed entirely of redskins direct from the reservation, will make its second annual tour of the nation this winter and it is attempting to book games in this section. Any local professional team that would like to book the Indians for a feature game, has been asked to get in touch with Mr. Seeger at 1206 1/2 26th St., Milwaukee.

The Indians are hoping to break the world's endurance basketball record by playing 120 games this season, so that managers of local teams desiring games are requested to write at once. Last year they played 58 games, winning 54 and scored 2,427 points to 1,542 for opponents, averaging 42 points a game their highest score for one game was 83. The team also is classed as "the luxe entertainment" beside its caging sport, and its motto is "an educational program for the entire family."

MAJOR GRIFFITH WORKS TWIN CITY GRID BATTLE

Menominee, Mich.—(AP) — One of the oldest high school football rivalries in the United States was resumed here Friday when Menominee and Marinette, Wis. high schools clashed in the new $125,000 stadium here Friday afternoon for their thirty-third annual contest. Eleven thousand people are expected to pack the stadium in this town of 11,000 population. Major John L. Griffith, J. C. Masker and Fred E. Gardner, Big Ten officials will handle the game.

The visitors have had a decided edge the past seven years scoring 159 points while Menominee has failed to score a point but the Michigan team was determined to upset the Badgers Friday.

Star of Game
 Although his team lost, Quarterback Ed Brular was the outstanding star of the recent Texas-S. M. U. game, won by the latter team.

Madison — Wisconsin meets Iowa here Saturday in the annual Badger Homecoming grid event, which is scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock at Camp Randall Stadium before a capacity crowd. The game will be broadcast by Stations WHA and WTMJ, direct from the field.

It is the hope of the Cardinal to repeat its victory of last Homecoming when its brilliant forward pass attack won out, 20 to 10, over a powerful Hawkeye offense. Saturday's battle will be the tenth meeting of the two elevens, Wisconsin having annexed eight of the nine contests played to date.

The Iowa contingent arrived here Friday morning and was scheduled to take their final workout at the stadium at an early hour Friday

Notre Dame Coach Loses Only 8 Games In 11 Years

BY BILLY EVANS

Knut Rockne is one of the most interesting figures in the sport world. If there is any one who doesn't have the lowdown on this fellow Rockne, he is the football coach at Notre Dame.

In all probability, Mr. Knute Rockne is one of the very few, if not the only coach, who doesn't have to worry from year to year as to his football berth.

The reason: Knute Rockne always delivers, no matter how many stars he may lose from year to year. Somehow, among the freshmen class he always seems to have in reserve, players just as good.

This is Rockne's eleventh year at Notre Dame. At the close of the present season, teams coached by him will have played in more than 100 games under the Notre Dame colors.

Knut Rockne is a product of Notre Dame. He learned his football under Coach Jess Harper. On his graduation he assisted Harper for a year or two and when Harper retired, he recommended the naming of Rockne as head coach.

It was in 1913 that the name of afternoon. Coach Thistlethwaite will put the fulishing touches to his Badger attack after the boys from the Corn State complete their practice.

A huge bonfire and mass meeting will be held on the lower campus Friday night and Saturday morning Capt. John Zola will lead his Badger harriers against the Iowa cross country team.

Rockne first broke into the headlines. He was then a star player. It was that year that the forward pass combination of Doyles at quarter to Rockne at end smothered a great

ROCKNE'S RECORD
 Eighty-three victories in 93 starts is the remarkable record made by Coach Knute Rockne in the 10 years that he has spent at Notre Dame prior to the present season. He has hopes of going through 1927 undefeated, bringing the string of wins to 93.

Here is the record of the 10 years of Rockne teams at Notre Dame with the captain in charge:

Year	Captain	Won	Lost	Tie
1917	James Phelan	7	1	0
1918	Peter Baham	6	1	0
1919	Peter Baham	9	0	0
1920	Frank Coughlin	10	0	0
1921	Eddie Anderson	10	1	0
1922	Glen Carberry	8	1	1
1923	Harvey Brown	8	1	0
1924	Adam Walsh	10	0	0
1925	Clem Crawford	7	2	1
1926	Hearndon-Edwards	8	1	0
Totals		83	8	2

army team 35-13 and was the start of an amazing string of victories over the West Pointers. Rockne was the captain of that team as well as an outstanding star.

In 1917 he took over the coaching reins. His captain that year was Jimmie Phelan, now head coach at Purdue, the man who treated Harvard to a real surprise this year by trimming the Crimson, 19-0.

In the ten years that Rockne has coached at Notre Dame, prior to the year, his record reveals 83 victories, eight defeats and two ties in 93 games played. Victories in the first 11 games of the present season bring the games won total to 88, a most remarkable record.

Despite the fact that Notre Dan for years has played the hardest schedule, in no season has Rockne-coached team lost more than 40 games. In three of the 10 years his teams were undefeated.

Football experts look on Rockne team of 1924 as his greatest achievement. That was the year he gave the football world the "Four Horsemen," another name for one of the greatest backfields in the history of the game, composed of Stuhldrehe, Crowley, Miller and Layden.

While Rockne has produced countless great players at Notre Dame, have his word for it that he regards George Gipp as his greatest. He got even further by saying there was a great back field star.

Rockne's 1924 eleven, regarded as his best, was conceded the national title by the grid critics.

With his blow Lawrence college gridiron fans held for a victory over Carroll college's three time Wisconsin Illinois conference champions Saturday at Waukesha, were practically shattered Thursday in the final scrimmage of the year, with Coach Catlin driving his men extra hard for the third straight practice of the week. The jinx which took Lawrence's veteran, backfield ace, Barrell, who had been starting all year with a weak squad, on the team of the Carroll game, struck again. After the blow had landed it was discovered that Gib St. Mitchell, sophomore end from Kaukauna, had broken several fingers on his hand and in spite of his insistence that he be allowed to play Saturday, though his entire hand is covered with splints, it is unlikely that he will get into the game.

Jessup, St. Mitchell's wing mate, was to have been shifted to the real wall to replace Barrell but with the latest injury, the shift is unlikely as Catlin would hardly care to face a team of Carroll's calibre with reserves at both ends, spots where Carroll concentrates a speedy running attack. Jessup, who had been practicing in the rear wall, all this week, probably will return to his end, with Bent or McDonald, who were to alternate Saturday at the job he left at the other wing. Bent appears to be the logical starting choice.

FIERCE OR GELBKE
New for the backfield. With both Barrell and Jessup unavailable, either Pierce or Gelbke are the other starting possibilities. If Pierce is in he will be at fullback, Barrell's job, flanked by Humphrey and Brunsat, the regular halves. Otherwise Humphrey probably will try the fullback job with Gelbke at his half. McInnis will pilot the team with Schlagenhauf also ready to go.

Kittelson will start at center, flanked by the sophomore guard pair, Vookas and Ehler. Schauer, will be in reserve for either guard or center. The tactics will be held down by Capt. Ott and Krohn.

Carroll's lineup also is uncertain of his reports from Waukesha are correct. Hoffman and Ambrose, regular tackles, are ineligible. Uecker, center, has gone to Marinette and Lange, quarter, is on the injured list. All but Ambrose are former all-state selections at their jobs.

MARQUETTE MEN SET TO FIGHT HOLY CROSS

Milwaukee, (P)—Conquerors of Fordham and Rutgers and other eastern schools, the stellar Holy Cross eleven 35 strong arrived in Milwaukee Thursday night for the intercollegiate battle Saturday with Marquette University.

The sole eastern invasion into Wisconsin territory of the year will bring the Holy Cross eleven against the Golden Avalanche at a time when the Marquette school is riding high on two successive victories over St. Louis and Grinnell.

Marquette is hopeful that they will be able to even the score of the east and the west, mindful of the disaster that accompanied their unsuccessful invasion of the Army gridiron.

The Holy Cross team is known as having a forward wall that is one of strongest bulwarks of an eastern eleven. In Gus Cervini it boasts an all-American guard and has a notable passing combination in Ryan and Shanahan. The Marquette team is in fighting trim and a battle in the air is presaged. The Golden Avalanche has relief much upon the passing accuracy of O'Keefe and the snarling ability of Gehert.

The Holy Cross team was accorded a vociferous reception. One thousand cheering students greeted invading warriors and alumni entertained them at dinner. Friday the Holy Cross eleven practiced on the Marquette gridiron.

Writer Says Lincoln Loved Only His Wife; Scouts Possibility Of Rutledge Romance

Chicago — (AP) — In the sense that they had complete confidence in each other's integrity, respected each other, desired each other and that each was supplemented and complemented by the other, Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd, the woman he married, "loved each other as neither had ever loved anyone else," Dr. W. E. Barton, noted student of the life of Lincoln, has concluded from an examination of the letters of the Civil War president.

Sifting the stories of Lincoln's affairs of the heart in a volume just published on "The Women Lincoln Loved," Dr. Barton dismisses the contention that Lincoln's love for Ann Rutledge, his first sweetheart, was so absorbing that he never was capable of another great affection.

That Abraham and Mary Todd Lincoln had frequent affections is undoubted, Dr. Barton grants, but "though they were not always happy each would have been unhappy with any one else, and neither would have been happy alone."

"LOVE IS ETERNAL"

"He loved her. She was the only woman to whom he ever gave a ring, and in that ring were the words 'Love is eternal.'"

Ann Rutledge was the attractive red-haired daughter of a family at New Salem, Ill., where Lincoln lived when he was first elected to the legislature in 1834. She died in the summer of 1835, and Dr. Barton writes that although there is "no reason to doubt that Lincoln's sorrow was sincere, he was speedily in love again and again. No one in New Salem suspected that he had loved Ann Rutledge with an incurable affection."

Mary Todd, whom Lincoln married in 1842, when he was still a state legislator, was born in Kentucky and came to live with relatives at Springfield, the Illinois capital, while Lincoln was in public service there.

She had many suitors, but she chose Lincoln and although they quarrelled often and both were minded at times to break the engagement, it led to the marriage which they mutually desired.

LIVED UPHAPPILY

Dr. Barton treats in some detail the later life of Mrs. Lincoln—her difficult position during the Civil War, when she was accused by some of disloyalty to the Union while her three brothers were losing their lives in the Confederate army; her great poverty after her husband's assassination, her lapse from sanity in 1875; her release from an asylum in the following year and her death from paralysis in 1882, three of the four Lincoln children having preceded her to the grave.

"Her story," writes the student, "is a sad story, the story of a woman misunderstood and cruelly persecuted. But . . . in the day when her heart was torn asunder, and most of her relations were on the opposite side, she was unflinchingly loyal to the United States. While she sometimes made her husband unhappy, and he not infrequently vexed her, she was an affectionate wife and mother, loving her husband with a passionate devotion and never failing in her faith in his character, his ability and his success."

REPORT FIRES TO DEPARTMENT, CHIEF ADVISES

When reporting a fire, report it to the fire department and not the police department, is the advice and warning of Chief George P. McGilgan. "Seconds count in fighting a fire," Chief McGilgan said. "I cannot understand why some people call the police department to report a fire. We keep an officer stationed at the phone all the time to give the public quick service."

When a fire alarm is given to the police, they must either call the fire department on the telephone or send an officer clear around to the front end of the building and valuable time is lost.

"Several years ago there was a bid fire in the city," Chief McGilgan said. "It was reported to the police and the few seconds lost in getting the alarm to the fire department resulted in many hundreds of dollars additional loss. For the weather was 15 degrees below zero. In the winter, especially, every second counts as it is very difficult to work in zero weather."

"If you want to report a fire, don't bother about looking up the fire department's number in the telephone book. Just tell the operator that you want the fire department and she will connect you immediately."

Chief McGilgan advises all residents of the city to learn the location of the

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL STUDENTS GET JOBS

Records Show Only 10 Per Cent of Part Time Pupils Do Not Have Jobs

Arguments of opponents of vocational schools that the schools permit too much loafing and keep students from productive employment are reported by figures compiled by Appleton vocational school, which keeps a complete daily record of the activities of its students relating to the time spent in actual employment and school work. Ninety per cent of the part time students at the school are regularly employed according to figures of E. P. Chandler, in charge of the boys, and Miss Pansy Tash, in charge of the girls.

Mr. Chandler's chart shows that this year there are 129 boys between the ages of 15 and 18 and classed as part time students and that Tuesday, morning all but 12 were employed. Of this number Mr. Chandler said that probably half would not work even if jobs were found for them. There are 75 girls who come in the part time classification and about 10 per cent of them are not working. Within the next two weeks 15 girls now bearing half time classifications will pass into the part time group and will then be ready for work.

There are about 20 half-time boys listed but in their cases many are not working because of the inconvenience to employers. These boys attend school one week and then work a week so that employers do not care to bother with them.

Employers are using the vocational school employment service more every year, according to Mr. Chandler, until it has reached a point where they call the school asking if someone can be supplied to take care of the job. In such cases the school sends down several applicants and lets the employer make his pick.

The placement bureau at the school is affiliated with and under the direction of the United States Employment service.

JACK LOCKWILL'S FOREST RANGERS

Though it seemed much longer to Darling and McNally, probably not more than two minutes elapsed before Jack reappeared, coming out through the curtain of water at the same point. He looked grim and thoughtful as he used a towel to dry himself. "What did you find?" Willie asked, over and over. "There's a recess or cave under the falls," answered Jack, dressing.

"It's a small, wet hole, yet it's large enough for several persons to hide in," Lockwill went on. "Maybe Old Hunchy dodged in there when he thought I saw him."

"Well, if that's right, he was sneaking around here to murder us in the night!" spluttered Darling. "I think we'd better pull up stakes and get out of this in a hurry."

"We came here to try to get a flashlight picture of the white deer," said McNally. "and I don't propose to be scared away by a crazy, prowling old fool who probably doesn't know what he's trying to do." "Let's decide what we'll do after breakfast," proposed Jack. They were eating breakfast when, to their surprise, Sue Varden appeared and hurried toward them.

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS AGAINST RAILROADS CALL FOR HUGE SUM

Excess Earnings Over Seven Year Period Total Over $300,000,000

Washington — (AP) — Government claims against the most prosperous of American railroads for stupendous sums of money now are in course of preparation in the Interstate Commerce Commission and will be presented for settlement during the coming year.

The commission proceedings constitute an endeavor to carry out the law of 1920, which provides for the recapture of excess earnings attained by common carriers. If the government contentions, now carefully being shaped out of the morass of litigation and accountancy covering the subject, are sustained, federal revenues will be increased by $300,000,000.

While the law has been on the books seven years, and the government claims under it are retroactive, the commission, the treasury and law officers have not been able until now to proceed in an effective way. Up to September 30 of this year, the government had collected $7,140,930 of the excess earnings claimed and not a dollar of the amount had come from the great railroads whose earnings are really involved. Litigation and the natural obstacles arising in the enterprise combined to prevent more substantial attainment of government revenues in the field.

SOME HAVE PAID

As the court decisions have slowly marked out the boundaries within which the government claims are rightful, a series of comparatively small railroads have given up the struggle and have undertaken payment. Among those which have contributed are the Duluth, Missabe and Northern, a steel corporation line, which is credited with producing more than half the entire total, or $3,768,670. The Bessemer and Lake Erie, another steel company line, has paid in $442,000, while the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, Henry Ford's railroad, has contributed $239,000. Also, one standard railroad, the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac has paid $195,000. A host of tiny lines has made up the balance.

Roughly, the government's $7,000,000 of collections represents excess earnings from about 5,000 miles of railroad out of the country's total of 267,000 miles of Class I railroad in operation. If the proportion of collection holds out for the entire railroad mileage of the country, the government will collect $350,000,000 for excess earnings between 1920 and 1926, and annually thereafter will proceed to take proportionate sums.

However, the collection will not be attained without further and stringent contest. In every case, the commission must first determine the actual value of a given railroad and allow each road to keep annual earnings amounting to six per cent of this actual value. It is from earnings in excess of this six per cent limit that the commission claims a government share amounting to one-half of the total. Court decisions have sustained the government's power to collect and the controversy now hinges on the standards of valuation.

MUST SHOW POSITION

Some of the larger roads have been served with notice to show their position in the matter of claims. The hearing as to the Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the Eastern lines most affected, has been set for March 19 and shortly thereafter the hearings will deal with the Norfolk and Western and the New York Central. The commission's valuation work is largely done; the applications of its findings to the recapture law is the next step.

Estimates have already been confidentially prepared for the commission members as to the amounts claimed from some of the large and more prosperous railroads, and it is known that in the case of some of these the government will collect—if it succeeds in enforcing all of its principles—amounts that equal an entire year's net earnings from the corporations concerned. While many railroads will be entirely exempt from the proceeding, there is hardly one which has enjoyed record earnings during the last three years which does not face a recapture claim.

POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS LESS THAN LAST YEAR

Receipts at Appleton, post office for October were $390.32 less than for the same month a year ago, according to information made public Friday. Total receipts for October, 1927, were $14,615.20 and for the same month last year $15,005.52.

Receipts for this month were divided as follows: Sale of post office stamp paper, $13,185.35; excess on sale of stamp paper, $2.57; second class postage money received from publishers, $334.54; postal collections in money from permit matter, $646.74; and box rents, $384.30. Several sources of receipts showed an increase over 1926 but the decrease in regular stamp sales accounts for the total being smaller.

Of 1,250,000 paid employees in Austria, 156,320 belong to trade unions, according to recent reports.

W. C. T. U. President Tells Women To Run For Office

Stoughton — (AP) — Mrs. Annie Warren, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance union sounding this year's watch words of the organization—"Agitate, educate, legislate"—Friday recommended use of public schools in the educational program and urged members to "run for any office you are capable of filling."

In the official publication of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Warren told fellow white ribboners that in the way of agitation they should keep "the organization fires of activity burning" in their localities. "Advocate your meetings in all local churches and papers," she said. "Report your meetings in all local papers and include several strong temperance truths that have been stated. If enforcement is not what it should be do not let the matter rest but agitate by articles in the papers. Preach continually and emphatically 'total abstinence.' Decry home brew and home-made wine. Announce that the making or serving of these drinks is fostering the alcoholic habit in some and creating it in the young."

"How shall we educate the state," she asks. "We can reach by far the largest number in our public schools. Study plans gotten out by our state education director. Consult with principals and teachers. Have the essays written by all pupils as a language or health lesson. Have posters made as a drawing lesson. Announce your prizes and rules. Next, reach the next largest group of children and young people in the Sunday schools with total abstinence teaching and the pledge."

In furthering the temperance work through legislation, Mrs. Warren urged the W. C. T. U. members to "begin in their home towns." To consider election, "Run for any office you are capable of filling," she said. "The average woman knows as much as the average man. Get out the votes and strive to elect only dry men—men who are in sympathy with the law. An interesting election is before us in 1928. Let us be informed. Study your courts and inform yourselves on the proceedings of law."

The W. C. T. U. organ also carried an invitation to all members interested in attending the world convention of the organization at Lusane, Switzerland, July 27-Aug. 2, 1928.

"A glance at the names of authors whose books are missing indicates that there is a certain similarity in their writings," says the report, "and that they appeal largely to the same group of people. Other widely read writers with as many copies of their works on our shelves represent comparatively few losses."

From a stock of 212 copies of books by James Oliver Curwood, fifteen copies or 9 per cent, are missing. From the 236 copies of Zane Grey's books, 21, or 9 per cent, are missing from the shelves.

No books by Willa Cather are missing, which would seem to indicate unusual honesty among the class who read her works. The loss among Edna Ferber's books was 1 per cent; Joseph C. Lincoln, 3 per cent; Jack London, 3 per cent; Mary Roberts Rinehart, 2 per cent, and Stewart Edward White 6 per cent.

"A class of books representing large losses are those dealing with problems of sex," says the report.

"The library's risk in loss of books dealing with the animal side of humans is much greater than that of literature which appeal to the intellectual and spiritual side of man's nature."

"Most books having a definite sex appeal, especially in fiction, have a short lived popularity," the report states, "and this, together with the fact that they are unusually subject to greater risk of loss, forces the library to consider seriously the extent to which it should expend its funds on such works."

The report sets forth the belief on the part of librarians that the problem of book losses has risen in recent years, partly due to the great increase in the use of libraries, which belongs into them a large number of persons who have not been trained in the care of books, and who have "little or no regard for the rights of others."

general's office relating to this question. Mr. Hellig believes that the state regulation on requirements for admission into vocational schools is clear on this point. The regulation reads that any person residing in or employed in the district in which a vocational school is located can enroll as a student. Any person who does not reside in the district may enroll if the consent of the vocational school board is obtained. A person living in a district where there is a vocational school can take courses at another school if he secures the consent of the board in his own district and also that of the district in which he wishes to attend school.

Appleton vocational school has a few students who do not reside in the city and are not employed here but all regulations have been complied with to permit them to attend.

While vocational school boards are permitted to charge weekly tuition for outside students it has not been deemed necessary to do so here. When classes are made up local residents are given preference and if the class can take in a few extra students the outsiders are allowed to join. No extra expense is involved and for that reason the board has never seen fit to charge tuition.
